B.C. Is Fastest Growing Province

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population reached 19,516,000 at April 1, an increase of 342,000 or 1.8 per cent in the previous 12 months, the bureau of statistics reported today.

British Columbia had the fastest growth rate, its population increasing by 3 per cent or 52,000 to 1,782,000.

Ontario's population climbed by 2.1 per cent or 140,000 to 6,702,000 while Quebec's rose by 1.7 per cent or 97,000 to 5,645,000, the bureau estimated.

Population figures for the other provinces (with totals at April 1, 1964, in brackets): New foundland, 496,000 (488,000); Prince Edward Island, 108,000 (107,000); Nova Scotia, 761,000 (759,000); New Brunswick, 623,000 (616,000); Manitoba, 961,000 (956,000); Saskatchewan, 949,000 (940,000); and Alberta, 1,448,000 (1,427,000).

MIXED REACTION

Interest Rate 'Freeze' Hit By Bankers

By The Canadian Press

Banking circles expressed both satisfaction and disappointment when Finance Minister Walter Gordon introduced revisions of the Bank Act in Parliament Thursday night.

Bankers were happy that the government is apparently moving toward changes recommended by the Porter royal commission on banking, but were surprised and disappointed that the finance minister proposed to retain the current six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

The government's "stand-pat" attitude on the interest issue was criticized by S. T. Paton, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

He said it is "difficult to understand in the light of the strong recommendations of the royal commission on banking and finance."

The commission's report, tabled a year ago, recommended that the ceiling be lifted even if its other suggestions were not accepted.

Mr. Paton said the proposal to allow chartered banks to enter the mortgage-lending field gradually would alleviate banks' problems somewhat and was thus to be welcomed.

'Step in Right Direction'

"The reduction of the cash reserve requirements from eight per cent to seven per cent is a step in the right direction, but I feel the variable reserve ratio for time deposits proposed by the royal commission is preferable."

The decision on the loan ceiling was described as a "government - preserved protective device for high-rate lenders" by Neil J. McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Continued limitation on commercial interest rates will deprive many Canadians "of high-risk loans at much cheaper rates than they now have to pay to finance companies of various kinds," he said.

Mr. McKinnon welcomed the permission granted to banks to enter the mortgage field, but added that the money supply would have to be large enough to allow the banks to step into that field to a major extent.

G. Arnold Hart, chairman and president of the Bank of Montreal, also expressed disappointment at the retention of the current interest ceiling.

Sinclair M. Stevens, president of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., and a leading figure in a move to get a charter for the proposed Bank of Western Canada, said the proposed changes to the Bank Act appear favorable at first glance.

He was especially pleased at the proposal that would make it easier to form new banks.

Mr. Gordon said authority will be sought to issue charters to new banks by letters patent, apparently in the same way that most commercial enterprises now are incorporated under the Companies Act. These charters, however, would be subject to upset by Parliament - only Parliament now can grant charters for new banks.

Bids Delayed by Debate

The Laurentide Bank and the Bank of British Columbia are also seeking charters but they have been delayed in parliamentary debate.

Kenneth Burn, general manager of Eastern and Chartered Trust Co., was disappointed that the six-per-cent loan interest ceiling had been retained.

He was not concerned with the proposal to bring trust and finance companies under direct federal control at a later date.

"We would have to have enlarged powers to offset the decreased earnings that would result from placing deposits with the central bank," he said.

R. M. Willmott, president of Traders Finance Corp. Ltd., said he had expected the government to raise the six-per-cent ceiling but added banks were making adequate profits through their higher rates on personal loans.

Mr. Willmott said he was not worried at possible future extension of federal control to the "near-banks."

"We are not concerned and we never have been since we saw the recommendations. . . . There would be good and bad factors, but I feel the good would outweigh the bad."

MAJOR REVISIONS IN ACT PROPOSED

Mortgage Field Opened to Banks

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's eight privately-owned chartered banks will be free to move gradually into the lucrative mortgage-lending business and seek wider ownership of shareholder stock among Canadians under proposals put before the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon.

But a tight rein is to be applied on foreign or provincial government ownership, and the banks must cut back severely their ownership of trust companies. It may be easier for new banks to obtain federal charters, but all will continue to be limited to six-per-cent interest charges on bank loans.

The banks will have to adjust gradually to a new requirement that they keep cash, day-to-day loans and treasury bill holdings as a reserve against their total deposit liabilities.

But the Bank of Canada will still be able to temper inflationary and deflationary pressures by influencing the banks' reserves. And the state-owned central bank will have to bow to federal government direction in any conflict between the two on Bank of Canada activity.

These were the principal provisions of three pieces of banking legislation introduced in the Commons by Mr. Gordon—bills to revise the Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Banks Act, and to amend the Bank of Canada Act.

Mr. Gordon told reporters at the end of the day-long banking debate that he adopted some recommendations of the 1961-64 royal commission on banking and finance because he thought they were good, but rejected others.

Many of the recommendations are still under study and may be incorporated in other legislation. The commission was headed by Chief Justice Dana Porter of Ontario.

Mr. Gordon adopted the commission's recommendation to let the chartered banks enter the mortgage-lending field. This should provide a new source of funds for house-building and general construction, and tend through competition to bring down mortgage rates.

But the finance minister rejected the commission's recommendation that the six-per-cent ceiling be lifted on bank loan interest rates. To free the rate might encourage a general rise in interest rates, which he opposes.

The banking legislation will go to a Commons committee after it is given second reading approval in principle. It must then come back to the House for further debate and third reading before going through three readings and committee study in the Senate.

The charters of the banks now expire July 1 unless for any reason Parliament doesn't sit 70 days during June. In that case the charters would automatically be extended into the autumn, but it may be necessary to give them another full

4 Marines Die In DR Mistake

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four marines, bringing the U.S. death toll in the Dominican fighting to at least 13.

U.S. sources said three marines were killed Thursday after a patrol wandered into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo. Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the ceasefire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newspaper men who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly. They were Al Burt and photographer Doug Kennedy, both of the Miami (Fla.) Herald.

A U.S. military source said the newspaper men had passed through a rebel checkpoint and were approaching the U.S. lines when the insurgents opened fire on the marines and the marines fired back.

The source said it was probable that U.S. gunfire wounded the newspaper men.

Another marine patrol took a wrong turn Wednesday into rebel territory. After sharp firing, the rebels captured two of the marines but released them Thursday.

Housing Loan Ceiling Hiked To $18,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The ceiling on National Housing Act loans for home ownership or other residential construction other than apartments is being increased immediately to $18,000, it was announced today.

Previously, the maximum that could be borrowed under NHA was $14,900 for a three-bedroom house and $15,600 for a house with four or more bedrooms.

Under the previous system of calculating loan amounts, a four-bedroom house with a $21,000 lending value against which the maximum $15,600 loan was applied, required a down payment of $5,400.

The higher loan limit now will reduce the down payment for this same house to $3,000.

Tornadoes Spew Death, Wreckage

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—

A string of tornadoes spewed death and destruction over this heavily-populated area of Minnesota Thursday night, killing at least 10 persons, injuring more than 300 and causing millions of dollars in property damage.

Heavy rain and two-inch hailstones preceded the twisters that struck during supper time.

Hundreds of homes were damaged and many were destroyed. Governor Karl Rolvaag called out national guard units to help local police and civil defence volunteers to maintain order.

Tornado sightings were reported over at least 25 small towns.

The heaviest damage was reported to communities around Lake Minnetonka, some 15 miles west of Minneapolis, and Spring Lake Park and Mounds View, 15 miles north of the city.

DESTROYS HOMES

Four persons died at Mound, a residential community on Lake Minnetonka's west shore. Dozens of homes were hard hit, and many were destroyed at Mound. Island Park and Narver also on the lake's west side, received heavy property damage and reported many injuries.

Four persons died at Spring Lake Park, one at Mounds View and one at Norwood.

The injured in twisters that hit Friday, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View were brought to Mercy Hospital at Coon Rapids in a continuous stream.

After two hours, the hospital's administrator, Robert Van Hauser, pleaded with ambulance drivers and motorists to take their injured to other nearby hospitals.

Van Hauser estimated that upwards of 100 persons had been treated at Mercy Hospital. Nearly 30 of those treated were in serious condition.

It was Minnesota's second night of tornadoes. A series of twisters hit the northwestern portion of the state Wednesday, and another series struck the southeastern portion of the state. About 20 persons were injured, but property damage was heavy.

FOG-SHROUDED CRASH SENDS SHIP TO BOTTOM

MACKINAW CITY, Mich. (AP)—Two ships smashed together in the fog-shrouded Straits of Mackinac today and one, the 588-foot limestone carrier Cedarville, sank.

U.S. Coast Guard radio reports from the area said 26 survivors were picked up, one body was recovered. Seven men still were missing.

The Cedarville and the Norwegian freighter Toppalsfjord collided about two miles east of the huge Mackinac Bridge, which links Michigan's two peninsulas between Lakes Huron and Michigan. The Cedarville sank within minutes.

Most of the crew of the Cedarville was from Rogers City, Mich., a community hard hit by another Great Lakes disaster in 1958. The Cedarville carried a crew of 35 men.

Early radio reports from the area told of hearing cries for help coming from the cold water.

E. C. Dagwell, a former marine radio operator, said the captain, Martin Joppich, tried to beach the ship, but was unsuccessful.

The radio operator said the Norwegian freighter radioed reports of "hearing fellows in the water calling for help."

The coast guard sent aircraft and ships rushing to the area, but were hampered by fog. The West German vessel Weissenburg was reported to have helped in rescue operations.

Lieut. William Mitting, a coast guard officer at Traverse City, Mich., said "the Norwegian vessel is standing by and appears in no danger of sinking."

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Commons today crushed another New Democratic Party attempt to abolish the Senate. The Commons voted 99 to 18 to defeat an NDP appeal against a ruling by deputy-speaker Lucien Lamoureux declaring out of order its motion to get rid of the Upper Chamber. It came on second reading of a government bill providing for retirement of senators at age 75.

Blind Man Killed

EDMONTON (CP)—A blind pedestrian was killed and his wife was injured Thursday night when they were struck by a car that failed to stop. Joseph Courtepatte, 53-year-old Edmonton pensioner, was tossed 61 feet by the impact. Florence Courtepatte, 49, suffered a fractured pelvis.

3,000 U.S. Troops Landed in Viet Nam

CHU LAI (AP)—Three thousand more U.S. marines and 3,000 Seabees landed on a desolate coastal plain in South Viet Nam today and immediately began building a 4,000-foot airstrip.

Not a shot was fired. Six South Vietnamese battalions scoured the area 48 hours earlier and killed eight Viet Cong and captured 13. Two of the government troops were killed and six wounded.

The Seabees—the U.S. Navy's construction and engineering specialists—estimated they would have the aluminum-base airstrip completed within 72 hours after all equipment had been unloaded from the ships anchored off the beach 52 miles south of the big Da Nang air base.

The landing brought the total number of U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam to about 45,000. Eighty-one U.S. jets attacked bridges and barracks today in North Viet Nam. Main attention was given to the Than Hoa highway and railway bridges, a target of two previous raids, 80 miles south of Hanoi. A spokesman said the bridge remained standing, but its approaches were badly damaged. One F-105 fighter-bomber was shot down at sea. The pilot was rescued.

"I hated to do it," he said. The plane's captain, Art Bell, gave the order for the horse to be destroyed.

The drama occurred west of here. The four-engined plane had stopped last at Honolulu. Vanderford's owner valued him at $70,000.

The Toronto syndicate valued all the horses at $250,000. They termed Vanderford the best of the lot and a champion in New Zealand.

"He was a beauty," said McNutt.

AXE USED TO KILL HORSE IN SAVING CREW OF PLANE

SAN FRANCISCO (CP-AP)—A flight engineer said Thursday he killed a Toronto-owned harness racing horse with a fire axe to save the crew of a cargo plane 8,000 feet above the Pacific Ocean Wednesday night.

"It was either him or the nine of us on board," said George Ropcean of Edmonton.

The six-year-old champion pacer from New Zealand, named Vanderford, had broken out of his stall and kicked his way almost to the plane's cockpit.

Vanderford was one of six New Zealand horses aboard a Pacific Western Airlines flight to Montreal. They had been purchased by United International Stables of Toronto, a horse-racing syndicate.

In a 30-minute airborne drama, the horse's flailing hoofs forced Ropcean and Don McNutt, the trainer, against the cockpit door.

Ropcean said there was no gun available so he grabbed a nearby fire axe.

Mister Loffmark's plan to separate from Canada could happily develop into a one-man thing.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today laughed off suggestions that External Affairs Minister Martin suffered a diplomatic snub when he arrived in Paris Thursday for talks with French government officials.

"He told the Commons amid considerable laughter that problems encountered by Mr. Martin in Paris were of a 'major technical' nature and that, in Mr. Martin's view, it was 'non-sense' to make anything of them."

Prune Heathers Now To Ensure Blooms

By HILDA BEASTALL

To be assured of heathers blooming profusely next winter we must prune them now, just as they have finished flowering.

Gardening is like that. What we do in spring results in the rewards enjoyed in later months or years.

The winter flowering heathers are such a delight in the three darkest months that they are worth any effort on our part to keep them in health.

The varieties Queen Mary, Ruby Glow, Springwood and Winter Beauty (also listed as King George) are all heaths, or ericas, which bloom from early to late winter into early spring.

Although the Springwoods still have a few blossoms, the plants will be in better shape next year if they are pruned with the rest now.

If they are fairly small, take heavy sharp scissors or secateurs and clip several stems at a time by holding the tips together with the left hand. Extensive plantings may be sheared over with grass shears.

Make the cut just below the flowered portion of the stems, just about where the leaves begin.

New growths will emerge from the lower part of the stems to increase the size of the plant during the summer months.

These winter heathers are not specifically lovers of an acidic soil, but well dampened peat moss pushed under the branches will keep the root area moist and encourage rooting from the lower stems.

During late spring and early summer see that all heathers have enough water supplied to enable them to make the growth needed to keep the plants in shapely mounds covered with bloom in their respective seasons.

Trade Use In Foreign Policy Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A panel urged President Johnson Thursday night to use trade with the Communist bloc as an instrument of foreign policy.

"The time is ripe to make more active use of trade arrangements as political instruments in relations with Communist countries," the special committee on trade relations with the Communist bloc told the chief executive.

"Trade should be brought into the policy arena. It should be offered or withheld, purposefully and systematically."

The committee was established after Johnson announced his determination "to increase peaceful trade" with the bloc.

As the group made its report public, a private study group, the Committee for Economic Development, recommended that the West seek expansion of trade with the bloc, yet maintain its no-trade attitude toward China and Cuba.

Similar private study groups in France, Germany, Italy and Japan reached the same conclusion on trade with the Communists, but they do not want to exclude China, a policy statement by the CED said.

The CED describes itself as a non-profit, non-partisan, non-political organization of 200 trustees drawn primarily from the ranks of board chairmen and presidents of business corporations, industries and universities.

Temporary Win Claimed by Nuns

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Mother Cecilia Mary's interim victory in keeping open the Good Shepherd Shelter for abandoned animals will last for at least one month.

Both she and Bishop Remi de Roo agreed it will take about a month for a decision on the shelter's future to be announced from Rome.

A church-ordered closure of the Metcoshin shelter last Tuesday will be held in abeyance pending Rome's decision on a final report by investigator Rev. Andrew Keber.

He returned to the Benedictine abbey in Mission City Thursday after meetings here with Mother Cecilia, Bishop de Roo and Mother Superior Ursula of St. Mary's Priory in Colwood.

During his three-day visit, both he and Bishop de Roo visited the shelter on Duke Road.

Claims Follow Barge Capsize

VANCOUVER (CP)—Claims totalling more than $300,000 are involved in a Supreme Court action in Vancouver as to why chip barge, owned by Vancouver Tug Boat Co. Ltd., capsized at Tahsis in December, 1962.

Tahsis Co. Ltd. is suing Vancouver Tug and Yarrrows Ltd., who they say built the barge, for damages totalling $175,000 for damage to its dock, loss of chips and other expenses arising from the mishap.

Vancouver Tug has counter-claimed for $135,756 alleging the capsizing was due to negligence of the plaintiff in loading the vessel and failing to provide adequate facilities for loading.

FIRST VISIT

It was the first time the bishop has been there, but he declined today to discuss his opinions of the shelter where more than 100 abandoned cats, dogs and goats are given care.

Father Keber has visited the shelter several times before after being appointed investigator by the Sacred Congregation in Rome last year.

Bishop de Roo repeated today the issue is not the closure of the shelter, but whether or not the nuns accept Father Keber's directive to guarantee the survival of the order.

Fourteen nuns of the Benedictine Order of the Love of Jesus care for old persons at the priory while six look after animals at the shelter.

'ANOTHER EXCUSE'

Mother Cecilia, who founded the order when it was Anglican and who will be 76 this month, said this morning survival of the order "is just another excuse" by the church.

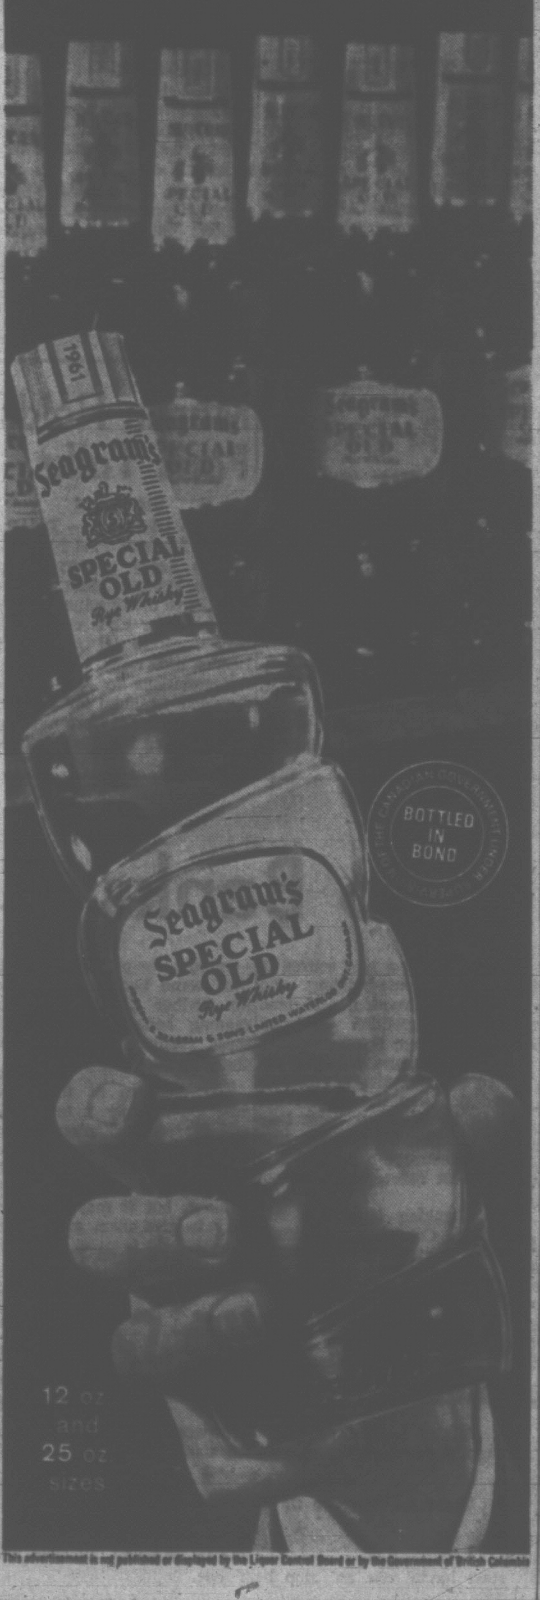

She agreed the order is low in numbers at present but considered this temporary and a situation shared by other communities of nuns.

She estimated the shelter has received almost 1,000 letters and telegrams from all parts of

SATELLITE 'LINEUP' FINGERS MOST WANTED CRIMINAL

It's the Early Bird That Gets Safecracker for Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A television mug shot relayed by a satellite led to the arrest of a Canadian sought by police since the burglary of a Montreal bank four years ago.

The Canadian, Georges Lemay, 39, was arrested Thursday by 11 federal agents and Fort Lauderdale police officers as he boarded his 43-foot yawl in the Bahia Mar Marina in Fort Lauderdale.

"I very seldom make mistakes," he told police Capt. Bob Smith. "How did you people catch me?"

Lemay was told that a host repatriated recognized a mug shot from Canada shown on the inaugural Early Bird satellite television program Sunday.

"Well, isn't that something," Lemay said. "It took a satellite to catch me."

Police have had an interest in Lemay for 14 years since his wife, the former Huguette Daoust of Montreal, disappeared while fishing from a bridge on the Overseas Highway in the Florida Keys.

SMASHED THROUGH FLOOR
On Dominion Day in 1951, thieves smashed through the concrete reinforced floor of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Montreal and rifled 377 safe deposit boxes.

They escaped with $500,000 to $4,000,000. The exact amount was never determined because of depositors' reluctance to talk. The chief witness at the trial where four others were convicted of the theft said Lemay was the mastermind.

Lemay, bare-chested and wearing tennis shoes, was calm when arrested. When the dockmaster asked him to settle his account, Lemay peeled off a few $100 bills from a fat roll and said:

"I'm paying you with my money. The money these people (the police) are interested in is somewhere else."

H was brought to Miami for a U.S. commissioner's hearing. Police Capt. Smith said authorities decided to charge him with illegal entry because, if found guilty, he could be carried back to the Canadian border immediately without having to go through extradition.

CANADIAN Georges Lemay, 39, was arrested Thursday on his yacht in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. He has been hunted for four years since the burglary of hundreds of thousands of dollars from a Montreal bank.

Man Stabs Woman Then Shoots Himself

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 35-year-old man stabbed a mother of four in the back with a hunting knife then shot himself here Thursday night, police said.

Dead is Donald Philip, a Winnipeg taxi driver. He shot himself in the head moments before police arrived at the Vancouver house in answer to a telephone call.

Mrs. J. A. Armstrong was in serious condition in hospital. Police said the woman was a divorcee whose former husband lives in Winnipeg.

Police believe Philip telephoned for an ambulance before shooting himself. He died on the way to hospital.

Mrs. Armstrong's four children, Sherry, 10, Cathy, 8, Billy, 6, and David, 5, were in the house at the time but were not harmed.

An Example to Follow

VICTORIA LABOR COUNCIL has shown excellent understanding in voting full support for the current 3-Universities Building Fund. The example should be followed by all citizens, particularly labor organizations, for no section of the population will benefit more through provision of university accommodation than the families of working people.

The $28-million program itself will offer five years of construction activity which will provide jobs for many trades. The completed buildings will house classrooms and laboratories for the thousands of students who now are pressing heavily upon the university facilities in this province—and the day is long past when only the sons and daughters of high-income families had a university education as their goal.

In any case, students from families of high income would be better able to travel elsewhere if British Columbia's university accommodation proved inadequate. It is to Labor's advantage to get such accommodation built as close to home as possible.

And finally, all talk of "let the government provide the money" falls short of the mark. The government, whether federal or provincial, does not make the money on a printing press. Government funds for buildings can come only from the public in the form of taxes. Whether through taxes or voluntary donations, the public is the only real source of revenue for university buildings or anything else. And the burden will be fairly distributed in either case, for those with higher incomes who pay higher taxes will also normally make larger donations; the smaller taxpayers will make smaller donations.

The current fund drive has far too many distractions from various sources. There have been attempts to introduce unrelated considerations—student fees, union membership, even theoretical opinions voiced in an academic debate which obviously were not intended to be applied to the drive now in progress. Such irrelevancies may provide quotations for those who do not wish to contribute anyway; they should not be allowed to deter the many residents who wish to help the cause.

As Mr. Anderson, first vice-president of the Labor Council has said, the middle of the campaign is no time to reverse direction and withhold support. The facts which count at the moment are that the buildings are sorely needed, that the campaign for donations is the only way under the existing circumstances to get the money, and that the appeal must succeed or a good many of our local young people are going to have unnecessary impediments put in the way of their obtaining a proper education for jobs and for life in a rapidly changing world.

Let us get the matter settled, the money collected and the buildings under way. Then there will be time to review the whole question of responsibility for future university needs.

If using taxpayers' money through government grants is a better way than passing the hat, then pressure can be put on the government to face up to its responsibilities. If partial public contributions are a better method, with the people taking a personal interest in providing the money and watching the use made of their investment in the institution, then this, too can be decided. These are decisions for the future. It is of no use to argue the point in this campaign at this late date.

But two facts cannot be dodged. Regardless of the methods of collection, the money, in the end, must come from the people. And the money must be provided or we will not survive in a world where advanced education is becoming a necessity not only for the individual who obtains it but also for the community which he will serve.

A Canadian Integration Problem

A VILLAGE IN CENTRAL Nova Scotia is involved now in the delicate problem of school desegregation.

The suggestion had been that 14 Micmac Indian students from a nearby reserve be admitted to Grade 6 in an elementary school there previously attended by white children only.

Parents objected, claiming that they were not advocating racial discrimination but that they feared admission of the Indian children would lower educational standards at the school and hence their own children would suffer.

The argument is known in British Columbia, where provincial educational authorities have co-operated for years in successful efforts to integrate many schools.

It is conceivable that 14 children brought into a single grade could influence its education standards if their previous schooling had not equipped them to keep up with the normal pace of the class. This could be the case whether the newly introduced children were Indian or white. Home environment and general background are important factors in moulding the academic ability of students.

tors in moulding the academic ability of students.

The British Columbia department of education is informed on this point, as are many of the school boards where integration has been carried out. But in this province the problem of providing equal opportunity for pupils has generally been taken in stride.

Many Indian students do not progress as rapidly, or as far, in school as their white friends. But the record also shows that more Indian children are going to integrated schools and more of them are continuing higher up the academic ladder than before.

The process may impede the speed of white children in such schools, since time spent on less adept students holds back the brighter ones. But an increasing number of Indian children are acquiring the education they need to be useful citizens. And there is an opportunity for white children to become better acquainted with the Indian youngsters and, through improved understanding, eventually to produce a harmonious community of the two races.

No Deals on Parks

MR. STEWART UDALL, United States Secretary of the Interior, seldom is open to attack for failing to protect conservationist and public park interests in his country.

He has, however, run into a sharp rebuff from the Portland Oregonian for what it considers his undue secretiveness in attempting to exchange sustained-yield units of federal timberlands in Oregon for private lands sought for Point Reyes National Park in California.

The secretary admits no error, but he has changed his attitude toward the means of acquiring the desired California land. He will try to buy it for money obtained from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

The change in negotiation underscores a point frequently made in British Columbia. The point is that if a government wants private property for park use, the government should buy it. Exchanges, and there have been a number of them in the province, create inevitable uneasiness.

Almost invariably a question arises over the value of the asset yielded by the government for the land it received in the swap. And, in the nature of such arrangements, a certain amount of secrecy is normal.

When the sale and the purchase are by cash, no secrecy should be necessary, and values should be clearly established and compared. That holds in British Columbia just as it does in the United States.

"It doesn't hurt 'em... probably good for 'em..."

FROM LONDON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Invitation to Move East of Suez

ANY fairly experienced traveller comes to expect surprises along the road. But there are still some kinds of surprises that no amount of experience quite prepares one for. Of this kind is the talk, now very widespread here in London, about new arrangements "East of Suez."

The idea, to put it bluntly, is to transfer to American shoulders a considerable share of the defence and strategic burden that Britain has thus far carried in the vast area extending from Aden to Borneo.

A drastic review of all defence commitments is now being made by the able defence minister, Dennis Healey, the other service ministers and the joint chiefs of staff. Thus it is not yet time for the request to the United States to do once again, in the Indian Ocean, what we did so long ago in Greece and Turkey.

But the possibility of such a future request has already been mentioned to more than one American policy maker. And unless Washington quietly but emphatically gives advance indications that the response will be unfavorable, it seems very likely indeed that the request will be made eventually.

Budget Strains

The motive now is the same as in the Greek-Turkish case. The present British defence budget is around $3.6 billion; and this budget is not buying nearly enough defence. Helping Malaysia against Indonesia, in particular, has imposed a grave strain.

Rule of thumb calculations—subject to revision, of course, by the defence review—show that annual defence investment must rise by another billion and a half dollars a year by 1970, if there are to be enough men with enough modern weapons to meet existing commitments.

But this increased investment of men and money in defence is considered to be flatly incompatible with the increased national productivity and the larger exports that Britain needs to make to escape from the vicious circle of currency crises. Hence the idea of reducing defence commitments and, therefore, defence investments by sharing the burden with the United States.

The new design to be proposed to the United States may or may not include the present Aden base. If Aden is to be abandoned, the design will then include a naval base or bases on one of the islets in the Indian Ocean—Britain to provide the islet and the United States to build the base.

Sharing Singapore

In the Arabian Gulf no changes are likely to be proposed. But the new design is almost certain to call for putting the great base at Singapore in a common-user status, with costs of maintenance quite naturally to be shared. The design may also call for joint construction of an additional naval base on the North Australian coast.

Officially, the design is likely to set up a quadruple partnership of Britain, the United States, Australia and New Zealand. But the essential aim is to give the United States a partner's share in the naval bases in the Indian Ocean and the seas around Singapore and to bring into these waters the carriers of the U.S. Navy, which Britain does not want to pay for duplicating.

The first thing to note about these new arrangements which are now being mulled over here is the simple fact that accepting them will transfer to the United States something far bigger than a mere share of the existing British defence burden. It will transfer to the United States, in fact, a moral responsibility for aiding Britain as best we may in the defence of the external vitals of the British economy which are still just as vital and vulnerable as they were before the Suez crisis.

If the new arrangements are accepted, in fact, it will be up to us to help the British in any way we can, if Britain's crucial rubber and other investments in Malaya are threatened, or if the even more crucial Middle Eastern oil investments are attacked, or if trouble menaces the raw material investments in East and Central Africa. These have been the reasons for maintaining the defence apparatus which the British now wish to share.

Here, in truth, the question of American over-commitment is forcefully and seriously raised. Those who say that we are over-committing ourselves, when we seek to defend the great American position in the Pacific, are talking obvious nonsense unless they mean that the United States was also wrong to fight the second world war in the Pacific and the Korean War, too.

In the Americas and Europe, again, American commitments reflect vital American interests.

But in the new area we are being asked to enter, and in Africa as well, there are no vital American interests. India has been built up as a vital interest of the whole free world; but even India is not really a vital interest, except for the amateur Hindus in our midst. In short, this immense extension of American responsibility ought to be examined with a very fishy eye.

Expo's Non-Eternal Flame

THE NEWS that Expo 67 has been stopped by a gas bill will be received with incredulity by taxpayers long since persuaded that Expo could not be stopped by anything on earth or in the waters of the St. Lawrence. Certain of the facts have been well authenticated. The first is that Expo officials, not long ago, decided that it would be appropriate to blend the rituals of the Olympic Games and Cape Canaveral in "count-down" ceremonies from Ottawa to Montreal. Citizens of Grand Coulee, Saskatchewan, would thus be roused through the magic of television to an even greater pitch of expectation.

It was accordingly arranged that, on the evening of April 27, the prime minister, encircled by members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps and the presidents of exhibiting companies, should light a symbolic torch and entrust it to the hands of a waiting cadet. It was then to pass from runner to runner until, at 11 a.m. on the following day, it was handed to Mayor Drapeau, surrounded by a group of suitably athletic high officials on the soccer field of St. Helen's Island in Montreal.

The torch was to light an urn and the eternal (two year) flame was to burn continuously until April 28, 1967, when the Fair will be declared officially open. Further to stimulate the sense of urgency animating every patriotic Canadian taxpayer, a "count-down" calendar was to tick off the intervening days.

A minor misfortune in Ottawa was attributable to the sheer cussedness of things. Following the ceremony guests were to gather for a black-tie dinner, fortifying their enthusiasm with Cornish game pie, champagne and other amenities of man and his world. Rather less than half made it because Expo, doubtless for the best of reasons, felt that Trade and Commerce was in charge, whereas Trade and Commerce, for equally good reasons, understood that Expo was carrying the invitation torch.

But one must expect the odd cloud even on the sunniest day. Apart from this minor misunderstanding, everything went off very well. The runners, the speakers spoke, the Montreal guests—according to an Expo handout—sampled their vin d'honneur, and Mayor Drapeau posed for an inspiring picture in front of the urn. Seldom has there been such a well-deserved triumph for the PR boys.

Unhappily, about two days later, an Expo official (since banished, it is rumored, to Ellesmere Island) happened to check with the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation to make sure that the corporation was paying for the gas. He may have been misled by the purely accidental circumstance that Quebec is host province for the fair. But whatever he may have had in mind, the corporation was horrified by the suggestion. Gas costs one dollar an hour and, as everyone knows, all bills nowadays are mailed to Ottawa.

No Gas Money

Expo thus found itself in a most embarrassing position. As a result of crisis talks the decision was taken to stand fast on established policy; millions for islands but not a cent for natural gas. In the moving words of an official spokesman: "We figured this might be just a little too much for the Canadian taxpayer to assume, so we decided to put (the urn) out."

Some reporters, suspiciously close to Expo, have hinted that the flame was not exactly extinguished but transferred to an economy-sized candle. This assumes that Expo found somebody to pay for the candles, and the story, until actually verified, should be treated with some reserve.

The PR boys, never at a loss, have explained that the flame from the urn has become a flame of enthusiasm burning in the hearts of all Canadians. Particularly noteworthy is the enthusiasm of those Canadians who run the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

It is one thing to chronicle, another to interpret, a sequence of unusual events. If we start with the assumption (reasonable enough) that there is more to Man and his World than is dreamed of in Manyberries and Fisher Branch, we may perhaps reach the idealistic conclusion that Expo foreshortened eternity out of consideration for the hard-pressed, long forgotten taxpayer.

ties of man and his world. Rather less than half made it because Expo, doubtless for the best of reasons, felt that Trade and Commerce was in charge, whereas Trade and Commerce, for equally good reasons, understood that Expo was carrying the invitation torch.

But one must expect the odd cloud even on the sunniest day. Apart from this minor misunderstanding, everything went off very well. Gas costs one dollar an hour and, as everyone knows, all bills nowadays are mailed to Ottawa.

No Gas Money

Expo thus found itself in a most embarrassing position. As a result of crisis talks the decision was taken to stand fast on established policy; millions for islands but not a cent for natural gas. In the moving words of an official spokesman: "We figured this might be just a little too much for the Canadian taxpayer to assume, so we decided to put (the urn) out."

Some reporters, suspiciously close to Expo, have hinted that the flame was not exactly extinguished but transferred to an economy-sized candle. This assumes that Expo found somebody to pay for the candles, and the story, until actually verified, should be treated with some reserve.

The PR boys, never at a loss, have explained that the flame from the urn has become a flame of enthusiasm burning in the hearts of all Canadians. Particularly noteworthy is the enthusiasm of those Canadians who run the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

Secrecy on Costs

There is another, much less attractive possibility. Questions have been pending in Parliament about the costs of Expo, the most closely guarded state secret since the Manhattan Project. It may conceivably have occurred to Expo officials that a well-publicized saving of $16,000 at this time would endow the corporation with a virtuous halo in the eyes of the public.

In the latter event, it may be said that never since Confederation has there been such an elaborate build-up for non-payment of a gas bill. The idealistic explanation will be much preferred by those with a flame in their hearts.

Voices Of Quebec

Granby Le Voix de l'Est

The Quebec labor department intends eventually to bring under provincial jurisdiction the employment service which the federal government now operates. As Labor Minister Carrière Fortin says, it is ridiculous for two employment services to operate in our province.

But there is another reason for the minister's deliberate speed to make the change. The National Employment Service, which has always drained off almost all work from the provincial service, in fact merely hastens the interprovincial flow of skilled manpower, since unskilled workers are practically left out of the picture. Yet Quebec must hang on to every technician and specialist she can provide a steady and well-paying job for.

In Quebec's new economic view, an employment service should not merely provide the entrepreneur with a specialist and forget about the untrained worker, but should take account of the latter's aptitudes and advise him what to study to attain what he wants.

Ottawa Le Droit

When one government invents a quarrel with another, we always wonder why. It is usually that it needs a smoke-screen for some unpopular measure, some gaffe, some turnabout, some neglect or fall-down.

It is obvious, however astutely Quebec's deputy minister of federal-provincial affairs, Claude Morin, may argue, that under the present constitution, treaties, agreements, joint declarations and international proceedings with foreign countries belong to the central government and not to the provinces.

And even in defending his education minister, Paul Gelin-Lefebvre, Premier Jean Lesage indicated he doesn't consider himself on sure ground when it comes to the provinces' right to reach international ententes without consulting Ottawa.

Quebec Le Soleil

The Pearson government is planning measures designed to constitute a major war against poverty in Canada. This country has seen a 1964 rise of 8.9 per cent in its gross national product, probably the highest such rise in the Western world. So it would seem that attention should be paid not so much to the general economic growth but rather to those marginal areas of the economy that are lagging behind, and that's precisely what the government's programs would set out to do.

But if it is desirable that the federal government should undertake such initiatives, it should also be understood that in a political system such as ours a certain number of projects should be undertaken with the approval and co-operation of the provinces.

Montreal-Matin

We won't quibble with Mr. Gordon over the economic objectives of his "growth budget." A budgetary deficit of $300,000,000, a growth in the gross national product, a government-established investment corporation—all these things should keep the economy fairly active. Yet, the estimated effects of the budget will fall short of the minimum level proposed by the Economic Council of Canada, which recommends a real rate of growth of 5.5 per cent, while the rate settled on by the finance minister is five per cent.

At the same time, it's regrettable that Mr. Gordon should hide behind the royal commission on taxation and the cabinet's committee on fiscal organization in order to avoid giving an immediate shot-in-the-arm to the economy and to avoid also relieving the economy of the heavy burden imposed on it by the sales tax now assessed against industrial machinery.

Montreal Le Devoir

It has been precisely since 1958, with the return to power of General de Gaulle in France, that we have heard from that country rather eloquent expressions of concern for national independence and a desire for international co-operation. The world has felt a unique presence. France has regained a place in the concert of nations which it had ceased to occupy before the Second World War.

The Gaullist Fifth Republic has accomplished in black Africa an exemplary form of decolonization. It has found the least painful of solutions to the sad and complex problem of Algeria. It has given back to French science and technology the prestige they previously enjoyed. It has developed unprecedented plans for assistance and co-operation to embrace Latin America and the Middle East, as well as their point of origin, Africa. It has opened new avenues of approach to the Soviet bloc, and finally it has established regular diplomatic relations with Communist China.

Mobile Meals for Elderly

As a Victorian presently working with Oregon State Council on Aging, I was interested to read that Mr. Frank Heaton, Seaside, has initiated a "hot meal delivery service" for the elderly. The project "Mobile Meals," in Bellingham, Wash., was created to meet in obvious need among old folk and shut-ins who did not cook adequate, nourishing meals for themselves. There is a similar service in Seattle—Mrs. Violet M. Perkins, 1961 East 19th Ave., Eugene.

Looking Back

From The Times of May 7, 1895:

Montreal: Conservatives have charged that six priests attended a caucus of the opposing party and a serious accusation has been laid before the archbishop against Abbe Bedard. The priest is alleged to have refused holy communion to some parishioners because they opposed those candidates in municipal elections which he favored. The archbishop has ordered an inquiry unless the priest gives up his parish. An inquiry, it is said, will show to what extent elections in Quebec are controlled by priests.

Gerald Waring

From Ataturk to Gerin-Lajoie

OTTAWA—It's a long way from Kemal Ataturk to Paul Gerin-Lajoie. Four decades and half the world. But when the George Washington of modern Turkey led his army against Allied forces occupying the Turkish town of Chanak in 1922 he helped prepare the way for the Quebec minister of education.

While Canada had established its own Department of External Affairs in 1909, it was only a minor adjunct to the office of the prime minister. Britain handled Canada's external relations, through the Colonial Office and the Foreign Office.

In 1919 Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden insisted on Canada signing the Versailles treaty separately from Britain. That was evidence of Canada's national maturity, as was also Canada's simultaneous membership in the League of Nations. But it took Ataturk's effort to drive the French out of Chanak to break the apron string running from Whitehall to Ottawa.

Lloyd George pledged British force to help repulse Ataturk, and asked Canada to provide troops. Our new prime minister, Mackenzie King, was on a train traveling from Montreal to Ottawa when he heard this news from a journalist. He was furious that Lloyd George had made the matter public before he, King, had been consulted, and he ignored the British request.

Gerin-Lajoie was then two years old.

The Fathers of Confederation had remarkable foresight, but their paper creation, the British North America Act, did not visualize complete independence for Canada. Sect. 132 provides Ottawa with the powers needed to carry out Canadian obligations under Empire treaties, but no specific power to negotiate and sign treaties for Canada.

Canadian foreign policy was pretty well made in Whitehall until the Chanak incident. That incident contributed to pressures that five years later produced the Balfour Declaration that the dominions are autonomous and co-equal with Britain itself.

Canada became master of its own foreign affairs by devolution, as an attribute of its new national status, and proceeded to establish foreign missions and negotiate treaties. But up to this day the written part of our constitution, the BNA Act, does not specifically empower Ottawa to sign treaties.

When Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, now 45, negotiated a teacher exchange program with France he had to get Ottawa to approve and sign the agreement. The Quai d'Orsay insisted on that, much to his disappointment.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie then seized upon the BNA Act's failure to confer on Ottawa the powers to make and implement its own treaties, and on the fact of provincial jurisdiction in spheres of exclusively provincial jurisdiction.

"It is no longer acceptable," he said, "that the federal state exercise supervision and control over Quebec's international relations."

More bluntly than Mackenzie King put it but identical in meaning: another building block in the edifice of an autonomous nation—this time the nation of Quebec.

Indeed, the analogy doesn't stop there. Quebec already has contracted out of a number of federal agreements with the provinces, reminiscent of how Canada contracted out of Britain's obligations under the treaties of Lausanne and Locarno in the twenties.

Few In House Oppose the CDC

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — When Walter Gordon's Canada Development Corporation comes up for debate in the House of Commons in the near future, chances are Conservative criticism of the measure will be uncharacteristically muted.

In fact, parliamentary strategists on all sides believe that after some token opposition digs, this major proposal will be allowed to sail through Parliament.

Behind the expected Tory reluctance to lambaste the Canada Development Corporation (CDC) is the memory of an epic battle which took place inside the Diefenbaker cabinet over a similar scheme only three years ago.

The Tory version of the CDC was called the National Development Corporation (NDC) and bore a remarkable resemblance to its current Liberal incarnation.

The corporations share the same motivation and structure. Their stated aim is to mobilize the private savings of Canadians so that a greater share of the capital needed to develop this country flows from domestic sources.

The initiator of the NDC was Alvin Hamilton, who presented the idea to the Diefenbaker cabinet on Oct. 6, 1960, shortly before he left the northern affairs and national resources portfolio for agriculture. Hamilton's scheme was no hasty harebrained concoction. A senior official of the Bank of Nova Scotia had joined his staff to help work out the details.

Ready to Go

The Diefenbaker cabinet approved the scheme and it was included in the 1962 speech from the throne. Diefenbaker was all set to launch his National Development Corporation at the London, Ont., meeting that began his 1962 campaign, but Finance Minister Donald Fleming objected so strenuously that the item was dropped.

Fleming, who recently renewed his opposition by coming out of retirement to publicly attack the Gordon version of the plan, was afraid that such a scheme would interfere with the nation's delicate financial mechanism. He felt so strongly against the NDC that there were reports he would resign from the Diefenbaker cabinet during the 1962 campaign if the proposal were made public party policy.

Opponents Gone

However, none of the Tories who backed Fleming in his protest against the NDC are still in Parliament. Only NDC supporters remain and that's why the Liberals' CDC can expect reasonably clear sailing.

How Young Ivan is Educated In Typical Soviet Day School

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW — When young Ivan starts his education in grade 1 at School No. 62 in Moscow, he has plenty of time to become familiar with his first teacher.

The same teacher handles the same class through the first four grades.

The custom is widespread in the Soviet Union. Russian educationists say it makes for continuity and stability in teacher-student relationships.

"That's fine as long as the teacher concerned is a good one," commented a Western observer. "Too bad for the child if she's not."

School No. 62 is a five-story red-brick building located on a west-end Moscow side street. It towers above adjacent small houses but, viewed from a distance, is dwarfed by a score of huge apartment blocks.

People associated with the school describe it as typical of one type of Soviet day school, that which accommodates pupils in grade 1 to 11. The other standard type handles grades 1 to 8 only.

45 Teachers

There are 800 students and 45 teachers in the school. Deputy director Leonid Sokolov says the teachers earn an average of 100 to 110 rubles a month—$120 to $132. Ten are men and 35 women. They range in age from 35 to 50.

"They are too old," complains one Moscow mother. "They haven't the fresh outlook that younger teachers would have."

In addition there are several male instructors in polytechnical subjects. Some students enter universities or equivalent institutions after graduating. Among the remainder, boys go to work as drivers, locksmiths or lathe operators, while girls go to sewing factories or drug stores—the school specializes in chemistry.

Classes average 35 to 40 pupils.

A metallic bust of Lenin occupies a commanding position in the lobby. Above the bust is a banner with this inscription: "Lenin is now more alive than all who are alive."

Also displayed prominently in the lobby are banners with propaganda slogans like "Long live the great Soviet people—builders of Communism"; pictures of the Communist party presidium and the Soviet government; a volume of the "moral code" of Communism; pictures of Mikhail Gorky, the great 19th century Russian poet, and printed extracts from his works; portraits of three Soviet cosmonauts; photo-displays of the school's leading athletes and of its best students, and illustrated traffic safety rules.

School runs six days a week, Monday through Saturday. It begins at 8:30 a.m. for most classes, and ends anywhere from 12 noon to 2 p.m., depending on the subjects. The higher grades have more classes. The number of classes daily runs from four to six.

For Grade 4 students, however, school begins at noon and runs through most of the afternoon. The afternoon shift is made necessary by classroom and staff shortages.

Next year the number of grades, set at 11 under former premier Khrushchev, will be cut back to 10. Then the afternoon shift in Grade 4 will be eliminated," said Sokolov.

After the second lesson in the morning, about 10:15 a.m., pupils are served a light snack, consisting of beverage and cake, in their classrooms. For this they pay about 12 cents.

Many children in Grades 1 to 3, because their mothers work, stay at the school after classes finish. They have lunch there—for 35 cents—and, about 4 p.m., another light snack. About 5 o'clock their parents come and take them home.

Tuition is free but the pupils have to buy their own books. Each child wears a prescribed uniform, boys a plain grey suit and girls a brown dress, with a combination jumper-apron over it.

Fitness Stressed

At the end of his third year—in April, the month of Lenin's birthday—the pupil joins the Young Pioneers, a pro-Communist training organization that initiates him in group activities and prepares him for possible party work later.

In Grade 7 or 8, he may join the Young Communist League.

In the basement of No. 62 is a "physical culture hall" or gymnasium; all pupils put in one hour twice a week at physical exercises. The gymnasium has parallel bars, volleyball and basketball nets, tumbling mats, climbing bars, and vaulting horses.

During the winter, pupils sometimes are taken out to ski in lieu of physical exercises in the gym.

Pupils have a choice of French or English as their foreign language, which they carry from Grade 5 until they leave school. However, in Grade 9 they may switch to German.

Each year a number of students enter No. 62 at Grade 9 having graduated from other schools after Grade 8. Non-academic students from such schools enter a trade or technical institution, while a few drop their studies altogether. By law, Grade 8 schooling is compulsory.

Often German is one of the languages taught in the Grades 1-8 schools. Students are allowed to continue it should they enter Grade 9 at No. 62.

Director Fedor Roschin of School 62 says: "If a child shows signs of not being able to keep up, he is sent to a doctor. If the doctor determines that he is slow mentally, he is assigned to another school where the pace is slower."

More Play, Less Work In Future?

MELBOURNE—John Kenneth Galbraith, Canadian-born Harvard professor, said here people should be thinking of a future with more play and less work.

Galbraith told an international congress on human relations, meeting in this Australian city, the day is coming when the goals of "the industrial system" will have to be considered more carefully.

He suggested a shorter working week, a shorter working year and greater choice between leisure and effort.

A native of Iona Station, Ont., Galbraith teaches economics at Harvard, is the author of The Affluent Society and was an adviser to the late President Kennedy.

"We have a large number of people who want to work like hell all the time," he told the congress.

"We possibly have quite a few people who would like to have a longer paid vacation, conceivably have a sabbatical year."

"Maybe we should consider whether we must always continue to keep abreast of the technological dynamic with an expansion of output. Instead we might wish to meet our needs with a minimum of well-distributed effort."

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

My phone has been ringing and I've received messages in the mail, asking how Pte. James Gunn of the Black Watch Regiment fared at the Battle of Waterloo.

You will remember I told you, awhile back, a little of his part in the retreat to Corunna, gleaned through reading his reminiscences of the Peninsular War and the Waterloo affair.

We left Pte. Gunn and his company safe aboard a transport in Plymouth harbor, where they lay for a month before joining the rest of the regiment at Shorncliffe.

Rumor had it that Bonaparte was assembling a flotilla to invade Britain, so "our first drilling was to learn to fire down the beach, standing or lying down."

Once the invasion scare ended, the troops were sent to fight the French in Holland. They landed on the Island of Zeeland "where there was no fresh water in the ditches and where even the wells were full of a kind of insect, visible to the eye."

The men got fever and ague. So, the order came, to return to England until the malady was conquered.

Finally the regiment sailed for Lisbon, Spain, where the British Army was now commanded by Lord Wellington.

They advanced to Salamanca, stormed and took a castle there, were outnumbered by the French, retreated into Portugal but returned later to battle again for the city.

Pte. Gunn wrote: "To the French this proved most disastrous and, I believe, was the commencement of their final retreat out of Spain."

He described the battle of Vittoria, July 22, 1813, and the route of the French . . . "we pursued them now without a halt into France, where they made a determined stand."

The British Army encamped in the hills in front of the enemy. French pickets were posted within talking distance of the side of a deep ravine. "It came on heavy snow and it was very cold."

The little book records attacks and counter-attacks after the British set foot on French soil, right up to what was thought would be the last battle, near Toulouse.

"On these heights the French made a stand to prevent us getting further," Pte. Gunn wrote.

"The battle commenced . . . our brigade suffered severely but Field Marshal Soult, finding that he would not succeed, made known that the peace had already been proclaimed."

Back went Pte. Gunn and his regiment to England and then to Ireland to recuperate.

While they were enjoying the hospitality of the "kind-hearted Irish" word came, that Bonaparte had escaped his island prison and was back in France.

Ternely Pte. Gunn recorded: "So we embarked once again . . . this time for Flanders and finally for Waterloo."

Hanoverian and Brunswick troops moved up to the front ahead of the Highland brigade, which didn't please Pte. Gunn a bit. He tells rather gleefully that "on the French coming forward to attack, off they went in the utmost confusion and some of them didn't stop until they were about 40 miles from the battle field."

He then records: "The French cavalry made a furious charge on our brigade, each battalion having to form a square. Our colonel was killed by a cuirassier before he could manage his horse to enter the square."

"The French seemed determined to cut up the Highland brigade but our brave Greys (Scots Greys) made them retreat."

Then came the final moments of the battle. "Bonaparte sent a division to meet the Prussians and had some sharp work. The Prussians pursued and harassed the French like locusts in a green field . . . suddenly we were marching and at comparative ease . . . the result, you know."

Pte. Gunn penned his reminiscences in 1863, when he was 80 years of age. Today, they are the prized possession of his great-grand-son, Richard (Dick) Ferrie of Saanich, who is also a member of the Black Watch Regiment.

U.S. Federal Power Growing

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON—One of the frontiers in the evolution of federal government in North America is that racial pressures are helping push trends in Canada and the United States in diametrically-opposed directions.

In Canada, faced with a new insistence on the French "fact" of Quebec, the autonomy of the 10 provinces grows.

In the United States, at a pace vastly stimulated by the Negro's fight for equality, federal power continues to broaden over the 50 states.

That growth was a basic but blurred issue in last November's presidential election. Former Senator Barry Goldwater, while swamped, still salvaged 26,000,000 votes on a platform in which the preservation of state rights was a fundamental plank.

The rise of federal powers in the U.S. has been a recent phenomenon but it has become a snowballing process with continuing momentum supplied by the president, the Congress and the Supreme Court.

Conservatives who regard Goldwater as their voice say that the American Constitution in regard to state rights has been bent until it is broken, and see the New Deal administration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the 1930s as the period when federal powers first got out of hand.

The United States was born as a reluctant union of 13 former colonies, gathered together against Britain for protection in the practice of an undiluted laissez-faire philosophy.

In part, that philosophy lay behind the South's ultimate protest in the shape of the Civil War and it contributed to the prolonged existence of an atmosphere in which entrepreneurs such as Andrew Carnegie could amass from a richly resourced economy huge fortunes, long after federal power had begun to take over in other countries.

For example, the U.S. Bill of Rights of 1791, passed as a constitutional amendment, was long held by the Supreme Court not to apply to the states.

The first real federal breakthrough is regarded as the establishment in 1887 of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the principle that commerce among the states was a federal responsibility.

Milestones

Other milestones followed. One was the 1890 Anti-Trust Act. But it was not until 1945—despite New Deal legislation designed to cope with a national depression—that Congress got around to adopting through a fair employment bill the concept that it was responsible for the general welfare.

Last year, Congress desegregated public places and now will desegregate the ballot box. There is also in the so-called medical care bill a precedent for more federal power. That applies equally to the passage of a $1,300,000,000 school-education bill channelling federal aid right into the nursery-school level.

These measures are part of an accelerating pattern in which total federal financial aid to the states will approximate a record $13,600,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This help, tied to specific programs from highways to schools, parks, health programs, agriculture and conservation, has tripled in a decade to include more than 120 programs.

Used As Lever

Significantly from the Negro's standpoint, it can be and is being used as a club to enforce desegregation. States or municipalities not complying with desegregation will not get the funds—at a time when such aid accounts for more than 15 per cent of state and municipal income.

One possible federal concession against the trend has been a proposal, still being thought about, for turning over a certain amount of money to the states each year without any strings. This would be roughly comparable to the unconditional grants that now are possible for Canadian provinces under the opting-out formula demanded by Quebec.

But there is no sign that this device, if it is adopted, will in any way grow at the pace of the federal role in control of spending on the states.

The U.S. never appears to have had the cohesive sort of Canadian federal-provincial bargaining establishment represented by the periodic meetings of premiers or provincial ministers with federal counterparts. The size of the U.S. is one reason.

The state governors do meet, but there seems to be little organized opposition to or support for federal policies among the 50 representatives who use their get-togethers more as sounding boards than intensive bargaining opportunities.

CORONER'S JURY

'Negligence' Blamed in Fatality

Driver negligence caused a fatal two-car collision here Saturday, a coroner's jury ruled Thursday night.

Miss Barbara Brown of Abbotsford jumped a stop sign, the inquest heard.

An eight-month-old baby, William Bruce Bell, 940 Southgate, died after the collision. His mother, Cynthia, and brother received only minor injuries.

Both drivers told police their speeds were about 20 mph.

When struck, the Bell auto travelled 63 feet out of control and flipped on to its roof.

DIDN'T SEE SIGN

Miss Brown, an Abbotsford social worker, admitted she did not see the stop sign on Foul Bay Rd.

She added she was new to the city and travelling slowly so she could recognize a street which would take her and her passenger to downtown Victoria.

"Just as I entered the intersection, I saw a car coming from the right. I immediately realized I was going to hit it."

"I had no recollection of seeing the stop sign," she said.

She added Mrs. Bell was travelling "at what I would call a fast speed."

Miss Brown testified she had travelled on the northern portion of Foul Bay Rd. earlier that day, and, seeing no stop signs, thought it was a through street.

AFTERNOON DRIVE

Mrs. Bell told the inquest she and her two sons, Arthur, 5, and William went for a drive along the waterfront that afternoon.

William was sitting between them in a baby chair which hooks over the back of the front seat.

She said she observed Miss Brown's car about 50 feet from the intersection.

"I didn't expect her to continue through. When you see her coming naturally you think she'll stop."

She estimated the other driver's speed first at 50 mph and later at 40 mph.

Following the impact, the baby was thrown through the open window on the passenger side.

I TRIED TO STOP

"I tried to stop... turned off the key and the car began to bolt. Then it bounced over."

Her eight-month-old child was found lying on the pavement midway under the overturned auto. The car, however, was not resting on the child.

Arthur hung onto his mother throughout the mishap.

William was conveyed to hospital by Dr. Thomas W. A. Gray, 1901 Fairfield Rd., a corner house where the accident took place.

The child arrived in "critical condition" at 5:30 p.m. and died 55 minutes later.

Cause of death was loss of blood and shock combined with his tender age, the inquest was told.

His injuries included multiple fractures of the ribs, pelvis and arm.

MYSTERY surrounds the identification bracelet which Gordon Irving, 35, of 567 Agnes Street, received through the mail from an unknown sender. It was given him by his mother, Mrs. K. M. Irving (above), when he was 12. He lost the bracelet a year later and had given up all hope of recovery until it was returned in an unmarked envelope with no explanation. Mr. Irving says he will give the bracelet to his son, Gordon Jr., four. (Photo by Jim Ryan.)

Pension Plans Blamed For Ban on Over 50

There is need for an Over-50 organization to represent the interests of men who cannot get employment after the age of 50, says Canadian-born Jon Farrell, now visiting here from London, Eng.

"Many firms today will not employ men of 50 and over because they are not eligible for pension plans," Mr. Farrell said.

"This involves hardship for many capable men, in good health, who need employment. I believe such discrimination is more commonplace in Britain today than in Canada. But it does exist here."

On his return to London in June, Mr. Farrell says he will place an advertisement in the London Times inviting men of 50 and over to form a protective organization.

"I have already spoken to my local member of Parliament on this matter and he agrees that the British Parliament should pass legislation protecting employees of 50 and over."

Mr. Farrell is a son of the late Rev. Dr. A. C. Farrell and Mrs. Farrell, who died recently at her home at 904 McClure Street. He came here from London when his mother was taken gravely ill last January.

Formerly a Vancouver newspaper man, he took up stage work after war service with the Canadian Army and has appeared in a number of London plays, including Guys and Dolls and The Male Animal.

He also writes plays and scripts for the CBC's radio and television service.

"Many of my friends are engaged in newspaper, news agency and office work, and I know how difficult it is for them to find employment after 50—and in many cases after 40."

"Pension plans involving a closed shop are chiefly to blame."

"Employers generally are less prejudiced against men in the 40s and 50s than they used to be. With the general improvement in health, men in these age groups are more active than formerly, and there are more of them in need of employment."

Mr. Farrell noted that the B.C. government no longer has an age limit for hiring provincial civil servants.

"It would be a great thing if other governments followed their example," he said.

The new Triumph TR4A

has independent rear suspension

(optional extra at additional cost from factory)

combines true sports car performance with comfort and convenience.

The new TR4A takes the curves faster, safer and more comfortably. We chose independent rear suspension because it has the best anti-roll characteristics. Ours is the trailing arm type (using coil springs and piston dampers) for utter simplicity and reliability. Ideal for track racing.

Release two catches on the windscreen rail and the top goes down. A neat cover hides it. And it comes up just as quickly.

You'll relax at top speed (120 m.p.h. on the track) in new space-age contour bucket seats. And with the new improved version (110 BHP) of the famous 4-cylinder 2.2 litre Triumph engine you go from 0 to 50 in 7.9 seconds.

The gears (4-speed box) are synchromesh. And mammoth disc brakes stop faster, straighter. No fade, no pull.

Luxurious interiors include thick pile carpet—walnut-trimmed instrument panel, with padded dash. All switches recessed.

The fly-off brake is now centrally mounted on the transmission tunnel and the dip lights are foot operated.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Russian cosmonaut Alexei Leonov had ear and eye problems and temporarily "lost" his Voskhod-2 capsule on his historic "walk into space" seven weeks ago.

That was the official report Thursday from Soviet medical expert Oleg Gazenko in a revealing account of Russian manned space activities before some 500 U.S. scientists and technicians attending a special session of the three-day post-Apollo space exploration conference.

Gazenko was a member of a six-man Russian delegation whose leader, physicist Genadiy Skuridin, earlier surprised American representatives with a double-barreled disclosure:

● That Russia's latest and most ambitious shot at the planet Mars, the Zond-2 probe, had failed. "Transmissions from Zond-2 have stopped," he announced. "We have been unable to raise it again."

● That the Soviets "don't consider a flight to land men on the moon a major space program." But both he and Gazenko conceded that Russia is busily studying the problems of manned lunar landings.

Gazenko, a frequent of U.S. scientific conferences, said Leonov's "vestibular (balancing) and visual faculties were impaired" while he was outside his spaceship for about 10 minutes last March 18.

NO DAMAGE

But, he added, "no permanent damage was noticed."

Gazenko also said Leonov experienced problems orienting himself as he "swam" around in space at the end of a thick line—a feat dramatically conveyed to the delegates by a pair of color movies of the flight that the Russians showed Thursday night for the first time in America.

In the cosmic vastness, Gazenko explained, Leonov occasionally discovered his spacecraft was "hard to find."

However, Gazenko did not elaborate on the vestibular or visual problems, or on the orientation difficulties.

Instead, he described the results of the one-day voyage "quite encouraging."

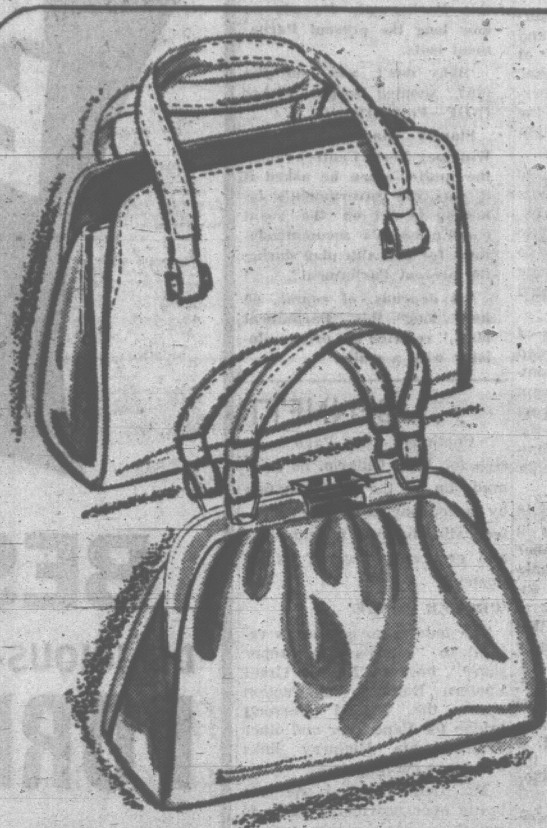

Earlier, Skuridin declined to comment on U.S. reports that still another Voskhod ship was supposed to have been fired into space to "dock" with Leonov's ship, but that for some reason it never left the pad. "As far as we know," he said simply, "it (Voskhod-2) was an excellent shot."

The failure of Zond-2, a 1,100-pound craft launched late in 1964, apparently cleared the way for a U.S. spectacular that, if all goes well, will begin collecting the first close-up photographs of Mars on July 14.

The American hope is the Mariner-4 probe launched last November. Unlike Zond-2, it is reported still alive and healthy. Mariner-4 is geared to snap more than 20 pictures of the mysterious red planet.

Other Russians at the conference were navigation expert Igor Bazhinov, scientist Genadiy Mikhisev, ministry of health representative Fedot Gorbov and Igor Milovodov of the Soviet Academy of Science's commission on exploration and the use of outer space.

HOUSE LIFE DETERMINES MEDICARE

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister L. B. Pearson told the Commons Thursday that whether his government will proceed with plans for a medicare program as recommended by the Hall royal commission, in this Parliament, depends on how long the present Parliament lasts.

"Why don't you pull the plug?" shouted Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur).

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) raised the matter when he asked if it was the government's intention to act on the royal commission's recommendations for a health plan during the present Parliament?

"It depends, of course, on how long this Parliament lasts," retorted the prime minister with a smile.

ship for B.C. Ontario, he said, made up for the discrimination by benefitting most from Confederation because freight rates and geography favored its industry.

PROPER SHARE

The federal government's refusal to "contribute a proper share" towards Pacific Great Eastern Railway construction costs, the Second Narrows bridge for Vancouver and other Trans-Canada Highway links also were complaints.

Mr. Lofmark had said the battle over provincial rights to invest in bank stocks was a leading complaint and the premier also emphasized it.

He said if the House of Commons passes the federal government's proposed banking amendments which would prohibit provincial participation in banks, the Liberal party would be wiped out in B.C. at the next federal election.

WORDS DIFFERENT

Mr. Bennett's words and tone were entirely different from his last press conference two weeks ago when he had kind words for Prime Minister Pearson and repeatedly emphasized that he believed in "co-operative federalism."

In Vancouver, Thursday, reaction to Mr. Lofmark's comments was strongly hostile from Mayor William Rathie, R. G. Miller, president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, and E. P. O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

All said the Secords would be defeated if separation was attempted and added that Mr. Lofmark's sentiments were in conflict with all of Mr. Bennett's public utterances.

BEG Bid Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersill said in the Commons today that "very difficult legal questions" and an unprecedented situation are involved in a BEG recommendation to cancel the radio licence of CJOR Vancouver when it expires Oct. 31. He told Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) he wants to give serious consideration to the law and to "natural justice" before deciding whether to advise the cabinet to accept the BEG recommendation.

BANK ACT PROPOSAL

Debate Blocks Will be Ended

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — If Finance Minister Gordon's proposal to transfer the power to incorporate new chartered banks is approved, it will mark the second time in this Parliament that steps have been implemented to get around debating blockades.

Mr. Gordon's proposal appears to be designed to give bank charters to groups whose bills have been held up in Parliament by prolonged debate. It is reminiscent of the 1963 measure to circumvent the filibuster against divorce bills conducted by two NDP members.

The proposed change in the Bank Act would permit the cabinet to issue letters patent incorporating a new bank.

Under present procedure, the applicant presents a bill that can easily be held up because it is discussed only during the one-hour period set aside for private members' business.

Some Commons members last session held up bills to incorporate the Western Bank of Canada and the Laurentide Bank of Canada after the Senate held up Premier Bennett's proposed Bank of British Columbia.

COULD ANNUL CHARTER

Parliament would not be entirely excluded under Mr. Gordon's proposal. It would have an opportunity to annul the charter if it wished.

But it would mean that a handful of MPs could not hold up a bank incorporation bill indefinitely.

Mr. Gordon told reporters that if 10 MPs petitioned for a debate on an incorporation, there would have to be a vote within 40 days. In effect, this would set a debating time limit and result in incorporation if a majority of MPs were in favor.

The proposal drew mixed reaction from the opposition.

The divorce measure won general approval since it was a compromise worked out after lengthy negotiations among all parties in Commons and Senate.

The need for a solution came in 1963, after New Democrats Arnold Peters and Frank Howard had filibustered for almost four years on divorce petitions presented to the Commons from Quebec and Newfoundland, the only two provinces that lack provincial divorce courts.

Governments May Collide Over Banks

Times Legislative Reporter

Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday said the provincial government will not swerve from its collision course with the federal government over provincial banks.

He greeted news of the introduction of a federal bill to prohibit provincial government purchases of bank shares with the announcement that Liberal Senator J. W. DeB. Farris agreed the same day to pilot the Bank of B.C. charter application through the upper chamber.

"I believe outstanding Liberals, Conservatives, NDP, Social Crediters and Creditists will support the province's rights to share in Canadian companies, including banks," he said.

SHARES PROPERTY

"Shares are property and property comes under the provincial jurisdiction under the BNA act and although the federal government has control over banking it has no right to interfere with our control over property."

He predicted that the Liberal party will lose every one of its B.C. seats at the next election if the prohibition is passed by Parliament.

No Evidence Drums Stolen, Says Lawyer

Defence counsel Robert Price Thursday in city court attempted to find two prosecution flaws in a case of breaking and entering and possession of stolen goods.

His clients, Mihaly Molnar and Janos Puskas, both of 1020 Catherine, have pleaded not guilty.

They are alleged to have entered a construction shed on the YMCA building site April 1 and later to have been found with four five-gallon drums of acoustic adhesive in the trunk of their car.

The value of the cement is $50 per drum.

Mr. Price said Thursday no evidence had been introduced indicating the drums were stolen.

Nor had there been any attempt to identify the drums of cement as stolen goods, he added.

The case was adjourned to May 10 for judgment.

Government Moves to Control 'Bank' Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — An amendment to the Bank Act that gives the government some control over pensions to be paid governors of the Bank of Canada has revived vivid memories of the "Coyne affair" on Parliament Hill.

Lions Carnival Opening Tonight

The South Vancouver Island Lions Club will stage its third annual spring carnival at Colwood Plaza, 7 p.m. tonight to 2 p.m. Sunday.

A teen-age dance, a rummage sale, two fashion shows and a special Mother's Day pancake breakfast will highlight the occasion.

In addition a fair will feature clowns, a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and other kiddie rides as well as games of chance.

The $25,000-a-year pension for former Bank of Canada Governor James E. Coyne was one of the hottest issues in the 1961 furor over the government's attempt to fire him. Mr. Coyne resigned after the Liberal-dominated Senate rejected a bill from the Conservative government to fire him.

The bank's board of directors in February, 1960, approved unanimously an increase to $25,000 from $11,500 in the governor's pension, to which he had contributed since 1938. Former Conservative finance minister Donald Fleming said he hadn't found out about the pension increase until the spring of 1961 and that Mr. Coyne had been derelict in a duty in not reporting the increase at that time.

Under an amendment to the Bank Act introduced Thursday, a pension to the governor or deputy governor of the bank, except for reasons of age or disability, "does not take effect unless it is approved by the governor-in-council."

Canada Uranium Interest Grows

TORONTO (CP)—The future of the Canadian uranium industry looks so good that Rio Algom Mines Ltd. hopes to expand operations by 1970 in Ontario's Elliot Lake district, the company's chairman said Thursday.

Robert H. Winters said in an interview that Rio Algom is looking for uranium deposits within a 150-mile radius of Elliot Lake, where many uranium mines have closed since 1959 when the postwar boom ended.

France already is negotiating a long-term sale of uranium with Denison Mines Ltd., and German, Swiss and Japanese interests are all known to be seeking similar contracts with Canadian producers, Mr. Winters said.

"The potential customers are coming to us now. Some of them are getting concerned about future supplies, now that France is looking for a long-term contract."

Except for a limited program by one French company, there has been next to no exploration for uranium in Canada since 1959, when the United States Atomic Energy Commission stopped buying Canadian uranium.

THEN A SURPLUS

At that point, there was a surplus of uranium for military needs and it was not expected the demand for nuclear power stations would become significant before 1975.

However, there are signs now that the revival of the Canadian industry may be much closer—so much so that a uranium shortage is predicted for the early 1970s, Mr. Winters said.

Rio Algom, like Denison, is bidding for the French contract, but is not anxious to tie up a large amount of its reserves at the current depressed prices, Mr. Winters added.

While Denison's contract to ship uranium oxide to Britain runs out this July, Rio Algom has another six years left in its contract and therefore has less urgent need of new markets, he said.

Share-Selling Move Rare Thomson Role

LONDON (CP)—There was an unusual announcement today about Lord Thomson, the Canadian-born publisher. He was selling—not buying.

The Thomson organization announced the sale of 60 per cent of shares in Thomson Printers, holding company for most of the group's printing activities, to the British Printing Corporation.

Purchase prices of $2,100,000 ($6,480,000) will be satisfied by the issue of 2,100,000 five-shilling ordinary shares in BPC to Thomson. That shareholding represents 9.37 per cent of BPC's enlarged ordinary stock.

Thomson has undertaken not to dispose of the shares for two years. If he wants to sell them, BPC will find buyers at a guaranteed minimum of 20 shillings.

The Financial Times columnist "Observer" interprets the move as a big, if apparently paradoxical, step in Thomson's diversification program.

The publisher bought two air-holiday firms and an airline last week and it might seem at first glance that the business now sold fits better with publishing interests than the newly-purchased enterprises.

"But this is not at all how it appears to the Thomson strategists on the diversification side—Gordon Brunton, managing director of Thomson Industrial Holdings," says the Observer.

"Too close links between the publishing and printing side of the group would be a standing temptation to feather-bedding on one side of the other."

"Travel, on the other hand, provides nice earnings during the dead seasons for publishing, and takes much of its money in advance. Above all, expert management comes ready-made."

Cannery Closes Interior Plants

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Rowcliffe Cannery Ltd. has announced it is closing its Kelowna and Summerland plants this year because of winter damage to Okanagan fruit, the high cost of imported fruit and union wage demands.

The cannery employs more than 200 persons during peak operations and has a yearly payroll of $300,000. It processes about $1,000,000 worth of canned fruit and vegetables annually.

R. S. Willis, managing director of the firm, said he could not say whether the closure would continue through other years.

LESSON OF GOLDSMITHS ...

Asset-Liability Ratio Key to Bank Changes

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—On Wednesday, April 28, the eight chartered banks of Canada had Canadian deposits totalling $16,995,000,000 as a liability on their books.

On the same day, they had $1,549,000,000 cash in their tills and in deposits with the Bank of Canada.

They also had $132,000,000 worth of day-to-day loans lent out to businessmen, and $1,286,000,000 worth of government of Canada treasury bills in their investment portfolios.

Their liquid assets—cash and easily-converted investments—thus totalled $2,786,000,000.

The ratio between their cash reserves and liquid assets to their Canadian deposit liabilities is the root-point of government control of the banking system, and of the availability of spending power in the country.

HOLD 15 PER CENT

At present, the Bank Act requires the chartered banks to keep cash reserves equal to eight per cent of their Canadian dollar liabilities. An informal agreement between the Bank of Canada and the chartered banks collectively is that the latter will keep liquid assets equal to 15 per cent of their deposit liabilities.

These are the arrangements to be changed under the new banking legislation introduced in the Commons by Finance Minister Gordon Thursday. The cash reserves requirement will be reduced to seven per cent. The secondary liquid assets ratio will be set at least at six per cent by the Bank of Canada—perhaps higher.

One of the principles of banking—learned by the goldsmiths of London in the 17th century—is that a prudent banker needs to keep in cash only a fraction of the money deposited with him. The rest of it he loans out to earn interest, in either short-term or long-term investments.

The more cash a banker keeps in his reserves, the less he has to lend. This—and its converse—is the principle which makes the Bank of Canada's control of money and credit operate.

The Bank of Canada can compel the chartered banks to be restrictive in their lending policies, by forcing them to reduce their cash reserves. It does this by selling government bonds to chartered banks at prices no banker would pass up. In the process, bank cash reserves are reduced.

CAN SLACKEN REINS

Or the central bank can slacken the reins and encourage the chartered banks to follow more lenient lending policies. It does this by buying government bonds held by the chartered banks, thus putting more cash into their hands and increasing their cash reserves.

For every dollar increase in a bank's cash reserves, it can increase the credit it loans to individuals or businesses by $12.50, when it is required to maintain cash reserves of eight per cent of deposit liabilities.

In time of real financial stress in the economy, the Bank of Canada can, under present law, require the banks to increase the ratio of cash reserves, up to a maximum of 15 per cent. But this has never been used since it was written into the Bank Act in 1954.

Under the new law, the cash reserve ratio will be fixed at seven per cent. The Bank of Canada will still be able to nudge the chartered banks into stricter or more lenient lending policy at this level.

But the central bank's big stick for times of particular strain on the economy will be in its power to require the chartered banks to increase their secondary liquid asset ratios, of six per cent by one per cent. The Bank of Canada will be a month to as high as 12 per cent able to raise the initial figure.

Suggestion Box Worth $7 Million

DETROIT (AP)—The suggestion box, often a depository for anonymous notes telling the boss to go jump in the lake, can fatten enterprising workers' incomes.

One worker at General Motors Corp. has used his award money to buy a new home.

GM employees mined the suggestion box for a record $7,868,184 last year as 415,000 eligible workers dropped ideas into the giant corporation's 2,750 suggestion boxes.

Louis G. Seaton, personnel vice-president, said the money was awarded to employees in the United States and Canada for 172,389 suggestions adopted to make jobs safer and easier while improving plant operations.

Sixty of the awards were for the maximum of $6,000.

John Elwart of the Detroit diesel engine division got $6,000 for suggesting that much time could be saved if towels in bulk were weighed rather than individually counted.

CUT HOSE LENGTH

Arthur R. Ripley, 31, of Clarkston, Mich., suggested reducing the length of heater hose on Pontiac cars not having air conditioning.

The man who has dug the most gold out of GM's employee suggestion plan is George Herzog, a 17-year man at the Fisher body division plant in Hamilton, Ohio.

Herzog has collected $45,905 over the years with the adoption of 36 of his 142 suggestions by GM. One of the awards was for $6,000. He has used a portion of his award money to buy and furnish a new home.

Lawyer Asks Union Raid Legislation

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia lawyers should press for legislation to settle jurisdiction disputes among unions, a Victoria lawyer told a legal seminar Thursday.

Louis F. Lindholm said B.C. needs labor legislation providing a body similar to Ontario's jurisdictional disputes commission.

"Generally our Labor Relations Act works all right in labor disputes, but it does not apply to unions' jurisdictional disputes," Mr. Lindholm said.

He said complexity of today's industry could mean an increasing number of such disputes.

France Keeps Pressure On Currency

CANNES, France.—France is keeping up the pressure in its drive to eliminate the dollar and pound sterling as world reserve currencies.

Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing this week reported on the two-day meeting here of European Common Market finance ministers during which the de Gaulle government sought the backing of its common market partners in attacking the dollar and pound sterling.

Giscard d'Estaing said the latest steps would be:

—To get the international monetary fund to increase the percentage of gold in its forthcoming $14 billion "save the pound" loan to Britain. This would cut the amount the United States could contribute in dollars and further strain U.S. gold reserves.

—To make clear to Britain it owes the common market a heavy debt of gratitude, repayable later at the bargaining table.

Clay-Liston Title Mix
Yanked Out of Boston

BOSTON—Counsel for promoters of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship fight today announced it will not be held in Boston as scheduled May 25.

Attorney Paul T. Smith, counsel of Intercontinental Promotions Inc., told Superior Court Judge Felix Forte "this case has become moot. The fight is not going to be held in Boston."

His announcement came at the opening of a hearing on Suffolk County District Attorney Garrett H. Byrne's request for an injunction to bar the fight. He had contended that Intercontinental and not Sam Silverman of Boston was the promoter and should be so licensed.

Intercontinental did not name a new site but a spokesman said "we'll hold this fight May 25 if we have to hold it on a barge in a Florida swamp."

SPORTS
DIARYBy SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—The image of Sonny Liston as the brute force in a prize ring, an indestructible armed fortress of a man, has undergone change. A new perspective on Liston was bound to follow when, 14 months ago, Cassius Clay walked out of the ring with Liston's heavyweight title after proving Liston could bleed.

Not until this week, though, did Liston make admission that he may not be able to take Clay by storm in their return bout May 25. "I've got a secret," he told boxing writers visiting his Dedham, Mass., training camp. Seemingly he was accepting a need for special strategy. Last time, he said he would simply blast Clay out of there.

Usually it is some longshot challenger who hints that he has developed some secret punch or special strategy that will cut down the champion. That it would occur to Liston that he needs to go strategic against Clay is a departure from the ex-champ's former attitudes when he brooked no possibility he could lose or had the need for special tactics except those he carried in his fists.

It is the more curious because Liston is no longshot in their coming bout. He is the 5 to 1 favorite to beat Clay, odds that stem mostly from a conviction that he was fat and under trained in their last affair when he ran out of breath from chasing and missing Clay.

Liston told interviewers he has learned something to his advantage from studying the films of his last fight with Clay, at Miami, but he isn't revealing what it is. The movies would show him many things, however, chiefly that he was a pigeon for Clay's stiff jabs which brought the blood, and that Cassius was not afraid of him.

Liston's study of the films would also show him the unpretty picture of himself refusing to come out for the seventh round when the bell rang and thus yielding up the title to Clay. It was perhaps the first time any heavyweight champion ever surrendered in that manner, and this episode of the films Liston ought to suppress rather than show.

Liston's excuse for quitting was that he had suffered a ruptured tendon in his left shoulder and could no longer use his left hook. Now he says it was his handlers who urged him to default, and he says that won't happen again. If there is a next time, he says, "I wouldn't allow them to call off the fight. I wouldn't tell 'em I was hurt."

Much In Film to Delight Cassius

His resignation from their Miami fight left many of Liston's observers skeptical of the whole business, especially when the films later showed that in the round before he quit he was still left-hooking, or trying to, with vigor. There was a continuing belief that Liston, like any schoolyard bully, wanted no more of the battle when it wasn't going his way.

Cassius Clay, too, has been re-examining the films of their last fight and in them he has found much to his satisfaction. First off, they afford him the constant reminder that he cannot only out-jab Liston with his equal reach and faster fists but hurt him in the process. For Clay, this was the beginning of his victory at Miami.

When Liston failed to destroy Clay in the first three rounds the advantage swung sharply to Cassius who was finely trained and could hear the heaving grunts of the slowed-up Liston. There was an episode in the fifth round when his handler's linaments almost blinded the smarting eyes of Clay but when he survived that crisis he was home.

Clay Stood Up Under Sonny's Swats

Out of their first fight emerged a couple of interesting truths: Liston is not invincible, and Clay is a far better fighter than he had been rated. Cassius took some swats from Liston of the type that twice destroyed Floyd Patterson in one round, and stood up bravely under them. When Clay didn't fall, Liston could only gape and then hasten to defend himself.

Clay is far from the perfect fighter, with the flaws apparent. He is still addicted to the foolish habit of dropping his hands and relying on his back-bending torso retreats to slip punches coming his way. It was survival by inches on frequent occasions at Miami but at the finish Clay could be credited with knowing his own skills.

There will be talent to burn on the starting line Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Some of the best in the Vancouver Island trundling pastime will be treading the maples at Mayfair in the men's tenpin rolloff of the Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Champions, former champs and an assortment of other hot-shot keglers will be matching skill and muscles in a three-game, scratch series for a Times Bowler-of-the-Year Trophy and a cash prize of $100.

The $100 award is a bonus, which will go to the winner if he is a subscriber to The Daily Times.

Qualifiers in the other three divisions of the Bowler-of-the-Week event will scramble Sunday for similar prizes on three other local lanes.

Bowlers qualified during the season for places in the rollofts by winning weekly awards in the 28-week contest. Awards in each of the four divisions went to the bowler who posted the highest weekly three-game scratch total in his or her division during regular league play on Southern Vancouver Island lanes.

Thus 28 rollers qualified in each of the four divisions—men's and women's fivepins, men's and women's tenpins—which means a total of 112 are eligible to step into Sunday's scrambles for prizes.

One of the hottest scrambles could be the men's tenpin struggle at Mayfair, where defending champion Henry Loo will ULLMAN SECOND WING ...

Roger Crozier Gets All-Star Berth

MONTREAL (CP)—Roger Crozier, rookie instrumental in leading Detroit Red Wings to a first-place finish in the season just ended, is the National Hockey League's No. 1 all-star goaltender.

He is one of two Red Wings on the first of two all-star teams announced today. Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks with two players each copped the four other first-team spots.

The teams, with the number of points each player received bracketed, are:

Crozier's name is the only one that did not appear on the first team selected at the midway point of the season. Hodge was the leader then.

A native of Bracebridge, Ont., who at 23 is young for NHL goaltenders, Crozier had a 2.46 goals-against average in leading the Red Wings to their first season atop the league since 1957.

He missed winning the Vezina Trophy, taken by Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs, by only two goals.

PLAYED IN EVERY GAME

He was the only goaltender to compete in all 70 games. Because he played only portions of two of those games, his official record lists 69½ games.

Crozier—like all the other players on the first team—gets $1,000 cash. The second-team members get $500 each. Players who were named to the first team in mid-season or end-of-season voting also get $500 each and those on the second team for either half-season get $250.

Crozier was a unanimous choice with 90 points in the second-half voting. Others who will get $500 for leading the second half are Pilote and Marcel Pronovost of Detroit Red Wings on defence, Ullman, Mahovlich and Howe.

Named to the second half's second team and winners of $250 each are Bower, Gadsby, Toronto defenceman Bobby Baum, Mikita, leftwinger Johnny Bucyk of Boston Bruins and Provost.

Crozier, Ullman and Provost, the three players who received most points, are on an all-star team for the first time. It is Howe's 16th all-star selection, a record.

PICKED BY REPORTERS

The all-stars are selected by sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities. Points are tabulated on the basis of five for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third.

Adanacs Fade
In Final Frame

NEW WESTMINSTER—New Westminster, showing its best in the second half, spoiled Coquitlam's Adanacs' debut in the Inter-City Lacrosse League Thursday night, 12-11.

Adanacs showed considerable promise for the future. They jumped into a 6-2 lead in the first half, still had an 8-6 bulge for the last 15 minutes but tired in the late stages and were outscored, 6-3.

Wayne Shuttleworth led the comeback by scoring all of his three goals in the fourth quarter. Paul Parnell matched that total and Gordie Jakubec had two goals for the winners.

Jack Barclay, trading hard to upset his former teammates, scored three goals for the losers—and also served 17 penalty minutes. But it was Ken Oddy, fired out of retirement, who paced the Adanacs with two goals and five assists.

Oil Kings Lack Zip

EDMONTON (CP)—Jubilant domination one dressing room and gloom the other after Niagara Falls Flyers stopped Edmonton Oil Kings 5-1 Thursday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final series.

Niagara Falls players appeared confident they could wrap up the national junior hockey championship in four games, but coach Bill Long declined to be drawn into a discussion of how long it might take.

Edmonton manager Leo Leclerc was dismayed at his club's performance. The Kings

DEBRODY SCORES TWO

Kings were outskated and outbumped almost from the opening faceoff. Bud Debrody led the Flyers attack with two goals and Bill Goldsworthy, Derek Sanderson and John Arbour added the others.

Centre Fran Huck scored the Kings' only goal, a vicious drive from the right point during the second period while the Flyers were two men short.

Huck was the Kings' outstanding offensive threat. Four of the Flyers' 14 penalties were imposed for infractions against the slippery speedster, picked up from Regina Pats.

Loo will be rolling against a star-studded pack of rivals, but Henry served notice during the season that he is capable of matching anything his rivals put on the score sheets.

Loo racked up the highest qualifying score in this season's contest, cracking the pins for a sizzling 671 series in the ninth week.

High on the list of contenders are the two best in the 1965 city zone tournament. Zone champion Derek Leonard qualified in the 12th week with 631, and Keith Snelling, runner-up in the zone chase, took Bowler-of-the-Week honors in the eighth week with 637.

Also in the rolloff are former zone champions Wilbur Webb, Gil Wong and Ken Munn. With them are time-proven performers like veteran Ron Wilson, Terry Moody, Ed Olivier, Sheldon Nipp and Chemainus ace Carl Grzech.

It all adds up to a wide-open race at Mayfair, with all the roll-off trundlers rating a chance to pick up the Times Trophy.

We'll Wrap it Up
In Four Straight
Says Beaver Boss

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Sherbrooke Beavers took advantage of a weak Nelson Maple Leafs defence Thursday to bang in seven goals in the third period alone for a 9-2 win and a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series.

"We'll wrap it up in four straight Saturday night," predicted Georges Roy, Sherbrooke playing coach, following the game. The Leafs playing coach, Bobby Kromm, said his team can still win a game here.

Nelson skated well during the game but lacked finish under the nets and missed several good scoring opportunities. Leafs goalie Seth Martin had trouble with Sherbrooke players swarming around his net.

Both Martin and Beavers goalie Serge Aubry dominated the first two periods of play with several outstanding saves. Martin stopped 26 and Aubry 20 in the first 40 minutes.

Sherbrooke went ahead at 3:30 of the second period on a goal by Simon Nolet and upped the score to 2-0 on a goal 10 minutes later by Jean Levesque.

When Nelson's defence fell apart, at the start of the third period, the Beavers rammed home four goals by the 5:54 mark to take a 6-0 lead.

Nelson made the scoreboard at 5:19 of the third when Mike Laughton snared a rebound and batted it home. The team's second and last goal was scored by Dave Russell who whacked the puck into Aubry's net from a goalmouth scramble.

Rejean Richer and Georges Guibault paced the Sherbrooke third period attack at two goals apiece with Rod Gaudreault, Claude Cardin and Larry Drouin accounting for the other Beaver goals.

The mass scoring by Sherbrooke was carried out despite a brilliant effort by Martin who stopped 21 shots during the period compared with Aubry's 10.

The game was fairly quiet in terms of penalties, differing from the first two which Beavers won 4-1 and 7-3. Player injuries occurred during both earlier games.

No major penalties were issued Thursday. Sherbrooke collected 12 of the 20 minors called.

The fourth game will be played here Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT.

Birmies made it three without a loss, edging Suburbans 7-6 at Marigold Park.

Gordon Strongman was the hero of the piece. Relieving starter Pete Jolly in the fifth with the score tied 6-6, Strongman muffled the losers' bats. He led off the seventh with a single, scored the winning run on successive singles by Doug Daniels and Tom Childs.

Russ On the Spot

Russ Ball, who has been there before, is being put on the spot again.

He'll start at centre forward Saturday when Victoria United meets New Westminster in a Province Cup elimination match.

The pivot spot has been United's problem position all the way in this long and drawn-out Pacific Coast Soccer League season.

Seven different players tried, at various stages, to solve the problem for United and coach Frank Grealy. Some enjoyed moderate success; some were as unconvincing as a beatnik in a barber shop.

HAS THE MOVES

That's why Russ is 'aving another go at it, 'Arry. The talented, Claremont High athlete has enjoyed a bathtub season—hot and cold. But Ball has the moves. More important, he can and does shoot well.

Grealy insists a centre forward should bang away at the ball as often as possible; and that will be Russ' orders Saturday when United steps out to advance a notch in the province-wide competition.

Ball won't have to do it alone. Bert Soutar and Jim Jamieson, on the wings; Peter Gooding and Ash Veldal, at inside, give United an attacking unit with more than just a touch of talent.

DAVIES IN GOAL

United will be without the services of goalkeeper Larry DeCosta, who suffered a bruised bone in a foot last week. DeCosta will be replaced by the veteran Al Davies, recruited from the District League.

Also, fullback Dave Slothard is a doubtful starter, not yet returned from his trip to Mexico with Vancouver Firefighters.

If Slothard doesn't make it back on time, Len Anderson will start in his position.

The game, possibly the last one of the season for United, will start at 2 p.m.

Colt Leaguers To Start Sunday

Victoria Colt League teams lift the lid of their new baseball season Sunday at Topaz Park.

Two games will be played Sunday. Smith Cedar Products faces Morey and Johnstone in the opener at 1 p.m. Empress Motors and Williams Heating tangle in the nightcap, immediately after opening ceremonies at 2.

Brotherhood of Carpenters, fifth team in the league, will pay its first game Tuesday at 6:30, meeting Williams Heating.

Senior Buttons Stay at Colwood

Larry McCooney and Roy Johnson of Royal Colwood retained possession of the city senior golf buttons by defeating Uplands challengers John Martin and Jack Betts on the 15th green at Colwood.

Next defence for McCooney and Johnson will be at Gorge Vale against the Gorge duo of Jack Clark and Chris Archer.

Len Bland Named Curling President

Len Bland has been elected president of the Sunny Commercial Curling Club at Allan's Rink.

Also elected at the club's annual meeting were Jim Galagher, first vice-president; Lawrence Hopp, second vice-president; and Mrs. Pat Cracknell, secretary-treasurer.

New Batting Breed Boost for Dodgers

By UP International

You need a scorecard to identify the Los Angeles Dodgers' hitters and it's worth the price.

The familiar Dodger sluggers—Snider, Furillo, Hodges, and Campanella—are gone and such unpublicized names as Tracewski, Parker, Lefebvre and Griffith are winning games in their place.

In fact, the Dodger hitters are enjoying their loftiest position in recent years, ranking just behind Cincinnati and San Francisco with a club batting mark of .265.

TWO GAMES AHEAD

Dodgers boosted their National League lead to two games Thursday night by completing a three-game sweep of the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3. LA's lightly regarded batting corps raked the proud Cincinnati pitching staff for 16 runs in the three-game set. And they did it without Tommy Davis, their most prolific hitter.

Ron Fairly hit his second home run in two nights and Derrell Griffith, a replacement for the injured Davis in left field, also homered for the Dodgers in support of Johnny Podres.

Dick Tracewski, who is hitting .350 and has driven in the winning run in two games in the last 10 days, plated another run with a sacrifice fly, and Wes Parker (a .283 hitter) tripled and scored the other run on a wild pitch.

Rookie second baseman Jim Lefebvre (.270) belted two hits and scored one of the Dodger runs.

JACKSON HOMERS

Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 in the only other National League game scheduled.

Baltimore Orioles whipped the Minnesota Twins 5-1, Los Angeles Angels beat Kansas City 5-4 and the New York Yankees-Indians at Cleveland was postponed by rain.

Larry Jackson hit his first home run in 11 years in the major leagues, added two singles and accounted for three runs for the Cubs while earning his second victory in four decisions.

Bobby Knoop tripled and homered to drive in four runs for the Angels and help rookie Rudy May to his second victory. The Angels now have won four straight and are within two games of the American League-leading Chicago White Sox.

Robin Roberts won his fourth

World Title Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first world championship fight here in more than three years is set for tonight between featherweight titleholder Vicente Saldivar of Mexico and Raul Rojas, the No. 3 contender from nearby San Pedro.

Promoters hope for 18,000 or more, thousands of whom will travel from Mexico for the 15-round bout in the 95,000-seat Memorial Coliseum.

The 22-year-old Saldivar surprised the boxing world when he stopped Sugar Ramos in 11 rounds at Mexico City Sept. 26.

our new economy Evinrude 33 SKI-TWIN

Skiers need big power. Two skiers need even more. So Evinrude has engineered the new Ski Twin—a 33 h.p. no-nonsense outboard that packs a massive wallop at an economy price. No frills. Just plenty of guts.

And it's versatile. This is the motor for fishermen who want to get away from the skiers. It gets you to those fishing grounds fast. Trolls nice and slow. All day without a sputter. It's a quiet one.

But then, it should be. The Evinrude 33 has a rubber cushioned powerhead and a sound deadening, tough fibre-glass hood. There's more. A cushioned slip-clutch propeller and stainless steel propeller shaft and drive shaft. And every part of the new Evinrude Ski Twin is salt water corrosion resistant.

Talk about reliability! The Evinrude 33 develops maximum torque at only 4500 rpm. It'll run like new for years.

Evinrude's Ski Twin 33 comes in a choice of 12 volt electric or manual start models. It's the economy powerhouse.

Cyclist Injured By Friendly Pat

TORONTO (CP) — Luxembourg raced into the lead and the Danish team was all but eliminated Thursday in the fifth night of the six-day international bicycle race.

Freddie Eugen, 24, partner of Palle Lykke of Denmark, crashed to the floor off the highly-banked end of the oval track and broke his left collarbone.

The Danish duo, in fourth place after Thursday's races, had been rated as second favorites in the marathon after Rik Van Steenberghe and Emile Severeys of Belgium.

About half of Thursday night's peak crowd of 5,500 watched Eugen win the fourth sprint of five at midnight.

As he crossed the finish line and went into the 55-degree turn, second-place finisher Hans Kanters, riding for the United States, reached over to give the swift Dane a friendly pat on the back.

He touched him at the wrong time, as Eugen was slowing down to about 35 miles an hour, and coming down off the top of the track. He lost his balance, somersaulted off the bicycle and tumbled onto the track, rolling over and over until he came to rest on the cement floor of Maple Leaf Gardens.

MAY RETURN TONIGHT

Race promoters said it was possible that Eugen would return to the race tonight with a special harness on his shoulder. If he doesn't, the Danish team will be forced out of the race.

In first place after Thursday's racing were the Luxembourg team of Lucien Gillen and Robert Lelange. They had a 297-250 points lead over Sigi Renz and Fritz Pfenninger of Germany.

University School Wins Track Meet

One record was broken and another tied Thursday when University School defeated Victoria High 87 1/2 to 80 in track and field competition at Vic High.

Tony Zedick threw the shot 49 feet 2 1/4 inches, eight and a quarter inches farther than the old University mark.

Neil Fraser ran the 100 yards in 10 seconds, equalling the University record.

PROPER DEVELOPMENT

'One Government For Peninsula'

Preservation of rural beauty on the Saanich Peninsula depends on one government for the whole area, Victoria Rotary Club was told Thursday.

Speaker was Hugh Stephen, a director and ex-president of the Chamber of Commerce and author of a report on regional parklands in 1963.

He said the successful solution of land development on the peninsula depends on single taxing authority in order to subsidize rural land owners until population flow catches up with agricultural lands and natural beauty spots.

"And here again we face defeat because we are tied to inflexible political institutions," Mr. Stephen told the club.

BEAUTY FORFEITED

"Everywhere, vistas of infinite beauty and ample opportunity are being forfeited for want of a redefinition of civic scale and authority."

He pointed out that every decision of importance involves six individual councils and authorities from the Inner Harbor to Swartz Bay.

"Although under the inspired leadership of Mayor Wilson it is surprising how much has been done in the past three years, I believe that this fragmented political structure places altogether too high a premium on continuing good will and co-operation," Mr. Stephen said.

One of the most pressing problems on the peninsula is premature subdivision, which might be solved by application of a subsidy, he said.

LAND 'POLLUTION'

Otherwise, the area is open to "land pollution," which he felt is more serious than air and water pollution.

It is permanent, "or at best it may take millions of dollars and countless years to cleanse again."

Mr. Stephen suggested a definite historical relationship between the environment in which a society chooses to live, and the continuing ability of that society to survive challenges from other societies.

Political and governmental institutions have failed to adjust to the 20th century, he said.

In Victoria, people may be blinded to the urgency of the problem by sheer beauty of surroundings, he suggested.

But today's megapolis gives little inspiration, either, for the preservation of environment of a formless, inorganic kind. People become less social, lonely and non-involved with environment.

There are plenty of omens to cause sober reflection, Mr. Stephen said: traffic congestion, lack of parking space, large expense in providing water and sewage systems, suburban development without parkland, waste of agricultural land for housing development, enormous school costs, decline of central business districts, and many others.

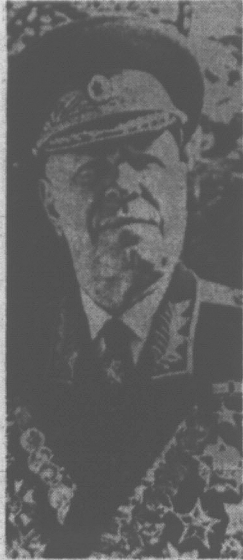

The speaker asked that regional plans, zoning bylaws, urban redevelopment, acquisition of recreational space, traffic control and other devices used to safeguard environment be considered together and within a framework of historical probabilities.

APPEARS UGLY

Society has failed to deal with its environment problems adequately because matters are dealt with in a "series of hot-patches, spread and sprawled, wrongly located and inconvenient in use so that the whole appears ugly and at fault socially."

"Worse still, because of our society's blind worship of the bulldozer, much that was previously cherished, much that should be preserved to remind us of whence we came, is being callously destroyed."

The duty of co-ordinating private development is that of government, the speaker said.

RUMORED about to emerge from eight years of oblivion after he was dismissed by former premier Nikita Khrushchev is Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov who is shown in parade uniform for May Day festivities in a picture released by an official Soviet news agency. Release of the picture indicated Marshal Zhukov has gained favor with new Soviet leaders.

BEING TRACKED

Recognizable by the uniform grey color of their wings, the glaucous-winged gulls are the large ones—up to 25 inches long—commonly found hovering around the Victoria waterfront.

They should not be confused with their cousins the herring gulls which have dark wing tips.

Says Provincial Museum director Dr. G. Clifford Carl: "The glaucous-winged gull is the one that comes to the window to get fed most often."

Reports of banded gulls should be sent to the Canadian Wildlife Service, 6660 N.W. Marine Drive, Vancouver 8.

Information should include date and location of observation, number of birds, color of band, whether on right or left leg, and spotter's name and address.

Translators Accompany Quebec Tour

Greater Victoria councillors have been studying French phrases for a month in preparation for their visit to Quebec next week, but just to be safe they'll have official translators with them.

Among the 150 B.C. goodwill ambassadors will be mainlanders Coun. and Mrs. R. Gamache, who will serve as interpreters on the staff of Union of B.C. Municipalities, organizer of the five-day tour of Quebec.

Greater Victoria municipalities are sending 35 representatives; 14 from the city, 10 from Saanich, six from Oak Bay and five from Esquimalt.

Nine of the total have been tutored in polite phrases, useful expressions and conversational small-talk by University of Victoria linguist Prof. Gerald Moreau.

Rotten Hole Becomes Oak Grove

MOSCOW (UPI)—No longer can the boy from Belly-Button live happily ever after with his bride at Rotten Hole.

No longer can you journey from Illville to Swineroo, or from Plunderville to Stinkeroo.

And those who lived at Flea Nest woke up on April 9 to discover they are now the proud inhabitants of Happyville.

On that day the Russian Parliament's executive body changed the names of a series of ancient Russian villages from something old to something new.

The villages acquired their curious names in pre-revolutionary times, frequently by whim and disinterest of the land-owning aristocrats.

Belly-Buttoners now boast of Bankside. Rotten Holes speak of Oak Grove.

Illville has become Dawn, and Swineroo, Sunrise.

Plunderville has taken on an air of opulence with its new name, Parklane.

And Stinkeroo has been changed to Field.

New Orchard replaces Foul Hole. Volgaside is what was once Viperoot.

Even the inhabitants of Toad Village have something to talk about. From now on it will always be Azure.

FACTS BROUGHT TO LIFE

Students Sold Bottles, Beans For Lessons in Social Studies

It's still school time for 52 sixth graders now visiting Victoria—but they are 500 miles from home.

This year makes the seventh time that youngsters from Washington Elementary School in Eureka, Calif., have chosen Victoria for a real-life social studies lesson.

On a three-day study tour of the city, the children have taken over a floor of the Empress Hotel, and have already explored every nook and cranny in the building.

Supervised by their school principal Miss Elva Quarheim and teachers Mrs. Jo Anne McGuire and Mrs. Pat Roscoe, the group is making the rounds of Victoria's attractions before returning home by chartered bus Friday.

Their program includes a tour

DON'T WANT MONEY
Fewer than half of 10,000 Canadians who have their 21st birthday in July, 1967, applied for the $70,000 scholarship fund for which they are eligible.

WORKED HARD
The trip, however, has not been a gift to the youngsters. With help from parents and teachers, they have worked hard all year, holding bottle drives, rummage sales and bean suppers, to raise the $2,400 needed.

"That's so important today," said Miss Quarheim. "Too many children get things handed to them."

The youngsters' opinions, too, show that the experience is not something they will forget in a hurry.

"I think it's pretty exciting," said Mike Rautialainen, 12.

Added Ronnie Jones, also 12, "We're lucky we get to do it."

CIRCUS WORLD
Filmed in Europe
Royal Theatre

The color and flavor of the Big Top, with its spectacle, drama and comedy, are effectively captured on film and intensified by the breath-taking exploits of acrobats on the high wire.

Tying these elements together is a more or less familiar story spelled out with acceptable performances and adequate direction by Henry Hathaway.

John Wayne is a circus impresario who decides to take his Wild West show to Europe. He is largely influenced by a desire to find Rita Hayworth, the mother of Claudia Cardinale, a young circus performer he has raised as his daughter.

Hayworth disappeared 14 years earlier following the death of her husband, a trapeze artist.

She and Wayne were in love and some believe the husband deliberately fell to his death when he discovered this.

Claudia Cardinale is in love with John Smith, the star of the circus, who some day hopes to be a partner to John Wayne.

The show arrives in Barcelona, Spain, and a show is staged in the harbor. The huge crowd overturns the boat, and while all the humans are saved, much of the circus is destroyed.

Subsequently Wayne, Claudia Cardinale and John Smith join a competitor's show in Paris, and pull off a stunt which brings much publicity and patronage.

Wayne continues his search for Rita Hayworth and, after much rambling around Europe, finds her in sunny Madrid. He forms another circus of his own, and invites her to return. She does so on condition her identity is not disclosed.

The story builds up to a spectacular climax with the Big Top catching fire and the acrobats racing aloft to cut away blazing sections of canvas.

Some of the sequences seem over-prolonged, but the general effect is satisfying and the acrobats have a special appeal for circus fans and young viewers.

The script by Ben Hecht and Julian Haley is based on a novel by Philip Yordan.

TEACHER SCORES VIET NAM POLICY

'Americans Afraid of Communism'

If South Viet Nam becomes Communist there would be no cause for fear, a panel discussion was told Thursday night.

"I personally am not afraid of the consequences," said G. Lewis Seens, a former member of the International Control Commission in the area.

"The Americans are afraid. It depends on one's attitude toward Communism—if scared, the present policy makes sense."

Mr. Seens said if the United States withdrew and the south united with the north, the probable result would be a country similar to Yugoslavia.

North Viet Nam Premier Ho

Chi Minh is a Communist but also a nationalist and "I find it hard to believe the Vietnamese would take orders from China."

Mr. Seens, now a teacher at Milnes Landing, said "far too many" definite statements are being made about Viet Nam "by people who don't really know what is going on."

"Of all the Americans I met in two years, only one could speak the language. I met three Frenchmen who could speak it—two of them were missionaries and one spent seven years learning the native language before he felt competent to speak it."

"Not a single newspaper reporter I met could speak the language."

"Where do they get their information?"

"I defy anybody to say how such statistics as 80 per cent of the people in South Viet Nam are for Ho Chi Minh are obtained. How does anyone know when so few are able to speak to the people to get such information?"

The panel discussion, sponsored by the Victoria New Democratic Party Association, attracted 80 persons to Norway House.

Steel May Force Election in U.K.

Tory Press Sees Playacting in Labor Rebel Conversions

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
LONDON (CP)—Tory newspapers today came out with charges of farce and play-acting following the Labor government's victory in a clash over steel nationalization Thursday night.

The big battle, however, still lay ahead. Observers forecast months of bitter political clashes—and possibly a general election—before the plan can go into effect.

The last-minute "conversion" of two Labor rebels gave the government a four-vote majority in the House of Commons on a policy white paper laying down a basis of legislation for state control of steel.

It was billed as the biggest test for Wilson since he came to power seven months ago.

Allowing for "pairs" and authorized absentees, the vote of 310 to 306 corresponded exactly with the strengths of Labor and the combined Tory and Liberal opposition at the time of the ballot.

But today the government's over-all majority was cut to three because a Birmingham byelection Thursday returned a Tory member, as expected.

'ARRANGED THE TIMING'

Conservative spokesmen charged in the Commons that Wilson arranged the timing of the steel showdown deliberately to come before a victory was declared in Birmingham Hall Green constituency, a Tory stronghold.

Some sources described as outright stage-managing the dramatic last-minute conversion of Labor rebels Woodrow Wyatt and Desmond Donnelly to the white paper which envisages nationalization of 90 per cent of Britain's steel capacity, fifth largest in the world.

In any event, Economics Minister George Brown became the central figure of the fight when he offered to "listen" to any suggestions about an ownership takeover of less than 100 per cent. This came as debate neared the 10 p.m. cutoff.

Wyatt immediately asked: "Does that mean that if the industry is prepared to come forward and concede the complete control . . . on something less than 100 per cent, we will listen to them?"

Brown said it did, and the Labor victory was in the bag.

The Labor rebels claim that full-scale takeover of the big steel companies is not needed for effective public ownership.

TAKE 51 PER CENT

They claim this could be done just as well by acquiring 51 per cent of the companies' shares, giving the government control of the steel giants.

Steel legislation has yet to be drafted and may not be seen in Parliament for many weeks, after which it would take an estimated two years for a takeover to occur.

The pro-Labor Daily Mirror said: "The main purpose of Mr. Brown's 'peace' offer is to find out whether Mr. Woodrow Wyatt is correct in his belief that the steel industry will agree to a compromise plan."

Iain MacLeod, Tory spokesman on steel, pledged that a future Conservative government would denationalize the industry if present socialist plans were fulfilled. The Tories set a precedent for this when after their victory over the Attlee Labor government in 1951 they denationalized steel.

The play-acting charges were based on that Wyatt sat on the edge of his seat during Brown's speech and jumped up to announce his agreement when Brown made his concession in the final sentence.

Cigarette Warning Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate commerce committee unanimously approved Thursday a bill to require "health hazard" warnings on all cigarette packages.

The measure would make it illegal to sell or distribute within the U.S. cigarettes in a package which does not contain a label asserting "caution: cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

The committee approved an amendment by Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) to suspend for three years a proposed Federal Trade Commission regulation that would require manufacturers to include similar warnings in their advertising.

The legislation grew out of a report last year by U.S. Surgeon-General Luther Terry, asserting cigarette smoking is a "serious hazard to health" and connected with lung cancer.

PRO-U.S. SPEECH BY BENNETT

'Don't Pluck Eagle's Feathers'

By JOHN MIKA
Premier W. A. C. Bennett gave a surprise twist to the ceremonies marking start of construction of the centennial museum-archives complex Thursday.

He departed from his text to give lengthy and extravagant praise to the United States' role in world affairs.

He was obviously referring to the Viet Nam and Dominican Republic crises although he did not mention them by name.

"I'm sure that every citizen in this province backs the United States 100 per cent because they are bearing the cross of freedom for us," he said.

"We should at this hour lend support to them when they are carrying such a terrific burden instead of joining all those who think it is great sport to pluck at the feathers of the American eagle."

ONCE MOST POPULAR

Mr. Bennett said there was a time when the United States was the most popular country in the world "and that's the time it shouldn't have been because it was isolationist and left us and Great Britain and the Commonwealth to fight alone for freedom."

But when the U.S. finally undertook her responsibilities and supplanted a war-exhausted Britain as world leader and bulwark of democracy she has become unpopular.

"When the great United States as world leader has lost tens and tens of thousands of her sons since the war in defence of freedom, that's when it seems that both friend and foe find nothing but fault with her."

"We should praise her instead."

PREMIER BENNETT
... eagle lover

came on the heels of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes' observations that only 100 years ago it was uncertain whether the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia would join Canada or the United States.

'A BIT DIFFERENT'

"They were a bit diffident about joining Confederation and they drove a hard bargain," he told the audience of 250 on the civil service parking lot.

"That I think is a tradition which our statesmen in B.C. have inherited," he said as laughter broke out.

SURPRISE TWIST

However, today Canada and British Columbia are in closer harmony than they were a century ago.

David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, also spoke as the federal government representative. He said he did not want to stress the federal government's $2.5 million contribution to the three-building centennial project which will cost a total approaching $7 million.

FAMILY OCCASION

"This is really a national family occasion," he said. "British Columbia should consider the federal grant as a birthday gift from the other nine provinces."

He said B.C., in turn, would be making its gift to the other provinces through a federal centennial grant and this exchange "should draw our national family ties just a little closer," he said.

A total of 18 flags flanked and topped the canopied dais where the special guests sat.

SMOKE SIGNAL MARKS START

Earth and smoke spurted skywards to symbolize the construction start of the $7 million centennial museum when Premier Bennett touched off a dynamite charge from the dais in the right background. Workmen moved in today to start excavation preparations on the civil service parking lot which will be site of the three-building project.

PREMIER'S PLUNGER WINDOW DRESSING?

Who really touched off the dynamite Thursday—Premier Bennett or a workman hidden behind the speakers' platform?

Some keen observers at the centennial museum construction start ceremony noticed a hard-hatted workman crouched over a plunger behind the platform.

He kept his eye on the premier and when Mr. Bennett pushed the plunger—after a little initial difficulty—set up on a desk in front of him, the workman pushed his plunger too.

But, whoever triggered the blast, the dynamite went off with a loud bang which in turn triggered a startled shriek from a woman in the audience.

'GOOD SHOW! WHO WON?'

20 Years Ago World Cheered

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Twenty years ago today, a Victoria man serving with the RAF in Burma turned to his batman and said:

"The war in Europe is over." The batman, a native African, replied: "Good show, Massa—who won?"

The Victoria man was Francis R. Jeffs, 1975 St. Ann. He was then a wing commander attached to the 82nd Division, West African Forces.

"The cease-fire started as a rumor and climaxed with a radio message from headquarters stating the Germans had surrendered and May 7 was officially VE Day."

On that historic May morning in F.R. Jeffs, 1945, General Gustav Jodl, German chief of staff, signed Germany's surrender at 2:45 a.m. German time—and all the guns in Europe went silent.

CITY CELEBRATED

Thousands of Victorians sang, shouted, blew whistles and waved flags—but thousands more were serving overseas with the navy, army and air force and auxiliary services.

"I was driving an armored truck on the road from Oldenburg to Wilhelmshaven in Germany when the BBC announced that the war in Europe was over," said Kerry Zeal, 1640 Edgeware.

"Later, over our radios, we heard the crowds in London whooping it up after all they'd suffered after all the bombing and blasting they'd endured."

Mr. Zeal was then a sergeant crew commander with the Fourth Armored Division.

"When VE-Day came, we were simply keeping some German naval cadets bottled up in a wood."

SHOT TO MISS

"We didn't fire to kill—our orders were to stop them getting out of the woods, so we just fired around them. They sniped back at us—and they went on sniping long after the war was over, but I don't think any one of us suffered from it."

VE-Day has particularly vivid memories for Lieut. Col. Kerry Zeal, 1640 Edgeware, DSO, 1068th Monterey. He was then commanding the First Battalion,

Canadian Scottish Regiment—and the battalion was about to take the German town of Aurich, northwest of Berlin when the war ended cease fire came through.

The battalion has seen bitter fighting and its original strength of 850 had been reduced to around 500.

"Aurich happened to be a German barracks town, so our quarters were ready-made for us," he said.

Leonard Ford, 711 Kingston Street, was aboard a motor torpedo boat with the 24th Flotilla of the Royal Navy when peace came, at Portsmouth.

"I'll never forget it. All the ships in port fired guns and sent up flares. The old seaport spouted fireworks all over the place and everyone went mad. There was dancing and singing till dawn."

IN ALDERSHOT
Arthur Duncan, a past president of the Britannia Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, was in Aldershot.

He had seen some bitter fighting with the South Saskatchewan Regiment over in Europe.

"It doesn't seem that long ago," he says. "We were all pretty excited to think the war was over and we would soon be returning to Canada."

Phillip R. Hughes, 904 West Saanich Road, was at Canadian Military Headquarters in London when the BBC announced the cessation of hostilities.

"We took the fire buckets round to the pubs and had them filled with beer."

"There were great crowds in Trafalgar Square. People went swimming in the fountains and climbed on the bronze lions."

"After being bombed for so long, most Londoners went wild."

FELL OUT OF IT

Derek Gilson, 172 Trans-Canada Highway, was flying an RAF plane over Holland when he heard the glad news on his radio.

"It was funny sitting there—somewhere between sea and sky—listening to all those cheering millions in London. I felt a bit out of it, but made up for lost time when I got to Paris."

"They really went crazy!" Many Victoria ex-servicemen had to be told that today was the 20th anniversary of VE-Day.

"It's been very quiet here so far," said RCAF veteran, William J. Kane, secretary of the Legion's Britannia branch.

"But I expect things will be livelier later on."

Victory School of Music's string quartet will present the final in a series of free chamber music concerts Saturday at 10:45 a.m. at Victoria YMCA.

Featured will be Bederich Smetana's "From My Life." The audience will be invited to ask questions on selections played following the concert.

Mrs. Sharon Tallon, of Port Alberni, remains in critical condition today—five days after being in a head-on collision that took three lives.

Her son, Daryl, 16 months, is in fair condition. Mrs. Tallon has not regained consciousness since the crash on the Alberni Highway near Coombs.

Killed in the collision were Harry Cyr, 35, and Edward Jones, 35, both of Port Alberni, and George MacGowan, of Calgary.

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Mill Hill, off Atkins Road.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open on Sunday from 10 a.m. till 5 p.m.

2-War Vet Dies Here At Age 78

Capt. Tasman B. T. Hewett, a veteran of both world wars, died at his home, 3943 Telegraph Bay Road, Thursday night. He was 78.

The former army man had lived in Victoria since 1944. He came here from Edmonton. An active church worker, he was people's warden and envelope secretary at St. John's Church for many years.

He was also active in the church's restoration after it was burned.

A member of the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, he leaves the widow, Ruby; two sons, Fellowes, of Montreal, and Don Douglas, of Grand Prairie, Alta.; a daughter, Mrs. F. V. Hinch, of Victoria; three sisters, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held 3 p.m. Monday in St. John's. Archbishop Harold Sexton of B.C. and Canon George Biddle will officiate.

Ask The Times

Q. How did the Scottish kilt originate? M. B.

A. According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, the kilt was originally not a separate, short, loose skirt but the lower part of the plaid garment in which the Highlander wrapped himself.

Arson Probed In Motel Blaze

By DESMOND BILL
Times Police Reporter

Arson is suspected in a fire that did about $5,000 damage this morning to a Saanich motel.

Police said all the indications point to a fire at Cadboro Bay Motel, 2630 Hibbens Close, being deliberately set.

The fire destroyed a shed containing a boat and trailer, lawn mowers and tools.

The shed is located at the rear of the motel property away from the main structure. Police said neighbors spotted the fire and raised the alarm shortly before 5 a.m.

The blaze was out of control by the time firemen arrived.

A provincial fire marshal was to investigate the matter today and Saanich detectives are working on the case.

A firebug was active in Saanich several months ago and caused considerable damage by burning down hay barns and empty sheds. An arsonist was also suspected of setting fire to a restaurant in Central Saanich.

The rash of deliberately set fires stopped suddenly after intensive police action. Police today did not say if they suspected any connection between the previous outbreak and this latest case of arson.

Topics of the Day

Victoria School of Music's string quartet will present the final in a series of free chamber music concerts Saturday at 10:45 a.m. at Victoria YMCA.

Featured will be Bederich Smetana's "From My Life." The audience will be invited to ask questions on selections played following the concert.

Mrs. Sharon Tallon, of Port Alberni, remains in critical condition today—five days after being in a head-on collision that took three lives.

Her son, Daryl, 16 months, is in fair condition. Mrs. Tallon has not regained consciousness since the crash on the Alberni Highway near Coombs.

Killed in the collision were Harry Cyr, 35, and Edward Jones, 35, both of Port Alberni, and George MacGowan, of Calgary.

Raymond Beech, 1716 Fernwood, was fined $300 in Esquimalt court this morning after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was charged April 3 after his car was seen weaving over the centre line of Craigflower Road as he drove along at about 50 m.p.h.

Beech originally pleaded not guilty but his lawyer, Jack Gatehouse, said he has been transferred and changed his plea in order to have the case concluded.

Both the plumbers and the international Brotherhood of Electrical Workers agreed loss of the Fraser cost their men more than one year's guaranteed work.

The federal government has not announced a policy change from the regional bidding system, but last December Mr. Hellyer called this system inefficient.

He gave Condon a one-year suspended sentence.

The magistrate said it could be called "record mania."

The accused earlier pleaded guilty in city court to stealing $72 worth of records from a store. The magistrate said that Condon's record collecting had become an obsession.

He gave Condon a one-year suspended sentence.

UNIONS FEAR SHIPYARD DECLINE

Shipyards unions agreed today there is cause for "grave concern" about future employment in the yards.

"We are worried," said Andrew Manson, president of the Victoria and District Metal Trades Council, (unions representing most shipyard workers).

National bidding on federal government contracts and the removal of shipbuilding subsidies last February "could be serious for the Victoria area."

The council will protest to Defence Minister Paul Hellyer the award of a $3 million conversion contract for the Esquimalt-based HMCS Fraser to a Montreal shipyard.

Spokesmen for the plumbers, electricians and shipwrights agreed with concern expressed in a letter Wednesday to Mr. Hellyer from the Machinists, Engine Fitters and Helpers.

BIDDING TRAGIC

National bidding would be tragic for shipyard workers here and does not seem fair, said Tom Wheatley, business agent for the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Pipefitters.

The federal government should have taken into account differences in the cost of living between east and west in awarding the Fraser contract, he said.

He anticipated layoffs in his union of perhaps 30 men in the immediate future. Two weeks ago, eight men were laid off at Victoria Machinery Depot.

Both the plumbers and the international Brotherhood of Electrical Workers agreed loss of the Fraser cost their men more than one year's guaranteed work.

The federal government has not announced a policy change from the regional bidding system, but last December Mr. Hellyer called this system inefficient.

Instant Breakfast— Ideal for Mom's Day

By Penny Saver

Ah, Mother's Day—the one day of the year, supposedly, when Mom can relax and take it easy and let the family do all the work. At least I hope my family is going to let me relax and take it easy. Anyway, they have promised—or threatened—to give me breakfast in bed—and, as a precautionary measure, I decided to stock the larder with something easy and not very messy to prepare.

Here's the answer! Anyone can boil an egg and, with it, they can serve baconettes—flat patties of pork, bacon, beef and spices that take only three minutes to prepare.

Richly flavored with bacon, these are selling for 53 cents for a package of eight. To cook, remove from the freezer and pop them into a frying pan. There's very little or no shrinkage involved! Not only are they a treat with eggs and toast for breakfast, but they can be used in a variety of other ways, too.

Try this for a light lunch or snack. Toast four hamburger buns, then butter the bottom half of each. Slice onion and tomato on top and cover with grated cheddar cheese. Now add a baconette slice. It's delicious!

Like a real old-fashioned breakfast of kippers? Well, here's a new idea in cooking the fish, preserving all the flavor yet not allowing the odor to circulate. Selling for 42 cents is a plastic bag of kippers, drenched with butter, and frozen. To serve, simply simmer it in a pan of boiling water. No odor, lots of taste!

By the way, if you like the aroma of fresh, home-cooked bread, and yet you don't have the time to do the preparing, here's a tip.

Now you can buy already prepared bread which is frozen until needed. Then, you take the rolls (a package contains two rolled loaves and sells for 33 cents) and place them on a greased cookie-sheet or pan. Allow to rise at room temperature and then cook.

What could be easier than this—no mess to clean up, no work involved.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I am a faithful reader of your column. Please help me with my problem! I am so self-conscious because I have bow legs. Is there some kind of exercise I can do to correct the shape of my legs?

A. I judge from your letter that you are a woman, not a child. I think that the best exercise you can do is the following. Whenever you stand place your feet fairly close together. Contract your muscles so that you pull your legs as close together as possible. Hold the contraction for a count of eight. Relax. Repeat at every opportunity during the day. You cannot change your bony structure but muscles also play a part.

Q. I have a fairly good figure except for my legs. They are fat on top. What can I do?

A. Try this exercise. Lie on the floor on your abdomen. Rest your head on your hands. Bend your left knee and raise your left leg from the floor. Now slap the thigh down on the floor, knee still bent. After slapping that leg several times, straighten it and return it to place.

Q. Please tell me how to use cosmetic wax. Is it painful?

A. No it is not painful. It may feel a little like pulling adhesive tape off when you remove it. First cleanse your face. Then powder it lightly. Heat the wax. When it has melted add when it is not too hot apply the wax and leave it on until it cools and "sets" well. Then remove it.

Q. I cannot get my measurements in perfect line. I am not at all overweight and I have exercised a good deal. My bust measures 36 inches, my waist 26 inches, but my hips measure 38 inches. I don't know what else to do!

A. Stop worrying. You have probably already hit bone because you are even a little underweight. It is just a question of build. Not all women can achieve a 36-26-38 figure. A difference of two inches between the bust and hips is allowable in the lovely silhouette range.

Q. What can I do for large knuckles?

A. So far as I know there is no remedy. Keep the skin of your hands soft, and your nails well manicured so that your hands will be attractive in every other way. This is not nearly so noticeable to others as it is to you. Forget it.

If you are losing weight by holding your daily carbohydrate intake to 60 grams a day my handy pocket-sized "Carbohydrate-Gram Counter" booklet will be a great help to you. It gives you the number of grams in each item of good plus sample menus. If you would like to have it, send

PETTICOAT PATER

By Judy Creighton

What is the world coming to? With the fat ones among us eating fat and growing slim, we live in a wonderful age.

So impressed was I with the idea of being able to gorge on fried food and thick cream, I just couldn't resist giving the new craze a try.

I'm one of those "kooks" who can't get along without my fat (food that is) so I embarked on the diet recommended by Josephine Lowman—the 60 gram diet.

One day for breakfast (which I normally never eat) I had a menu consisting of fried bacon, sausages, eggs and black coffee. Only thing missing in this meal was the toast—taboo to we 60 grammers!

By lunchtime, I ravenously and rapidly prepared my next so-called square meal—one well-fried hamburger patty, three asparagus spears, six ounces of cheese and a glass of whole milk.

I could barely move after devouring this. It carried me through to a dinner six hours later of lamb chops (with the fat on), a few vegetables as most have high carbohydrate content, cream soup and more cheese.

The next thing I knew I was out weeding my neglected flower beds—with so much energy from all that fat I was bursting with physical oomph!

Reading my gram counter, a thought hit me with a thump. Most foods that have been considered the dieters' own such as lettuce, skim milk, rye crackers, apples, oranges, most vegetables and fruits are "out" because of high carbohydrate count.

Yet, it seems odd eating cheese without the cracker and supping on the "fat" of the land.

I may not last out this tax on my will power, but I can't help saying thanks to its creator—I mean, who ever heard of a dieter eating whipped cream and losing weight?

VOWS IN ST. MARTIN'S

Interior Honeymoon Following Wedding

Making their home in Victoria are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Alan Donkersley.

They were married in St. Martin's-in-the-Field Anglican Church by Rev. Brian Cowan.

The bride, the former Dorothy Louise Wharton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wharton, 1909 Richardson Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Donkersley, 496 Davida Street.

Arrangements of narcissi and tulips decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a turquoise two-piece suit in wool trimmed with fur. She completed her ensemble with a white hat and turquoise accessories. Golden garnet roses and white carnations were in the bridal bouquet.

Best man was George Greenough and James Donkersley ushered guests.

Dr. Joseph Pawlowski, Duncan, proposed the toast to the bride at the reception in the Inghram Hotel. A three-tier cake centred the bridal table.

Out-of-Town Guests

Among out-of-town guests at the recent marriage of Miss Valerie Parker and Mr. Alan Gustus in St. John's Anglican Church were Mrs. L. Lindsay with daughter Stephanie of Kitimat, Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams of Nanaimo and Mr. and Mrs. R. Laird, Mrs. M. Quarmby and Mr. and Mrs. A. Quarmby, all of Duncan.

DEAR ABBY...

Complain!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What happened to all that wonderful entertainment we used to see on TV? All we get lately is stuff about crime, murder, divorce and young girls going wrong. But worse yet are all those horror things that make your blood run cold. Is this the way to entertain children? Where are all those funny comedians and all that lovely singing and dancing I used to see? We try to raise our children to think clean and lofty, but with all this junk and violence on TV we don't have a chance. Isn't there something we can do about it?

DISGUSTED MOTHER

DEAR DISGUSTED: Yes, you can write to the sponsors of such programs and complain. You can also complain to your local television station and ask them to pass your complaint along to the networks. If enough people express disgust, something will be done. But all one mother can do in the meantime is turn off her set.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is the manager of a gas company. We have been married four years and all that time my husband has been trying to persuade my mother to buy a gas stove for cooking. My mother has cooked on an electric stove all her life, and as much as she would like to please my husband, she doesn't think she would be happy with a gas stove. Mother is having her kitchen completely remodeled, and she is putting in a new built-in electric stove. Needless to say, my husband is mad. Do you think he is justified in feeling this way? After all, my mother is the one who has to cook on it.

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: No man (not even a son-in-law) can change a woman's cooking habits. But if your husband wants to be "mad," he can cook his goose with gas as well as with electricity. Your mother's preference for electricity isn't nearly as shocking as your husband's attitude.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26, have a good job and I am still a good girl. Three years ago I fell in love with a married man. I didn't know he was married at the time. He said he didn't tell me because he was afraid he would lose me. When I found out about his wife I quit seeing him, but I never really completely got over loving him. He saw a friend of mine one day last week

SEW SIMPLE

WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer: So glad you invited questions about wedding gowns because I am making one for my daughter. I am having such a struggle with the tiny loops for the buttons down the back. I'm wondering if you have any ideas about a substitute.

Mrs. H.H.E. I think I have looked at hundreds of gowns recently and there are substitutes for the bias corded loops. Some of the gowns have a braided thread-type loop which can be purchased by the yard. Yes, it's even used on expensive gowns.

The best yet is to sew many tiny covered buttons right on top of the zipper. This conceals the zipper and gives you the same effect you are looking for and saves lots of time. This is especially good for the new summer gowns made of cotton and linens.

Dear Eunice: I spend most of my time making children's clothes and most patterns tell you to use a strip of bias fabric for the neck facing. When I do this, I can't whip down the raw edge without the entire neckline puckering up. It's just too tight.

Mrs. V.R.

Dear Mrs. V.R.: The bias strip will work beautifully for your neck facing if you remember to ease the bias to the neckline as you pin it on. Remember, the area below the neckline where the edge of the bias must be hand-sewed to your dresses is larger than the seamline at the neck. The ease will take care of this.

Also, while we're on the subject of children's necklines, remember to clip the seam allowance about every inch down to the stitching line to release the fabric and prevent a pulled look.

Doman Drivers Seek Raise

DUNCAN—Drivers employed by Doman Industries Ltd. here are seeking a raise in wages and a cut in working hours.

The 35 IWA members want a 40-hour week against the present 47 hours, and a pay increase of 46 cents an hour across the board in the first year of a two-year contract.

Negotiations between management and union started this week. Present contract expires June 15.

Basic rate now is $2.28 an hour.

NORTH COWICHAN—Building permit values here are lagging behind last year's figures. But this situation will be reversed this month when a permit is taken out for construction of the new $3,992,500 district hospital on Gibbins Road.

This year's total to date is $609,004 against $646,856 in the first four months of 1964.

DUNCAN—Vivien Sykes will be seen here Saturday, May 15, in the comedy role which won her the "best supporting actress" award at the recent Drama Festival in Victoria.

Duncan Drama Club is staging "Bedtime Story" at Cowichan Senior Secondary School auditorium—the club's first public production for three years.

Rounding out the evening of one-act plays will be two comedies by Cowichan Senior Secondary School Players, "Brothers In Arms" and "The Price of Coal."

A Shawnigan Lake resident was fined $250 Thursday and restricted to driving for business purposes for four months.

David MacPherson pleaded guilty in Saanich police court to failing to remain at an accident scene at an earlier hearing.

He was involved in a two-car collision the evening of April 7 at Seaton and the Trans-Canada highway.

He immediately turned off his lights and disappeared from the scene.

Royal Horses Ailing

LONDON (UPI)—An epidemic of equine coughing has spread to the horses of the Royal Household, forcing the new West German ambassador to travel by automobile instead of the traditional coach when he presented his credentials Thursday.

MOTORCYCLIST HURT IN SKID

NANAIMO—A 17-year-old Cedar youth was in fairly good condition today following a motorcycle accident Wednesday night.

Richard Weighill suffered chest and internal injuries after skidding on a patch of loose gravel outside his Gordon Road home.

Piers Island Votes For Water Officials

Election of trustees to govern Piers Island Improvement district will take place later this month.

Shipping Hits
Record Pace
At Island Ports

CROFTON — During April some 24 deepsea ships of foreign registration left the ports of Chemainus and Crofton carrying 17,782,000 board feet of lumber.

A total of 6,043 tons of pulp and 836 tons of newsprint was exported to various countries during the month.

In Port Alberni, shipping hit a record pace in April with 35 ship arrivals and the servicing of 10 vessels April 30.

Cargoes of lumber, pulp, paper, plywood and shingles shipped from the port during the month totalled 55,967 tons, compared with 48,526 tons for April, 1964.

The list of freighters expected to arrive in Nanaimo this month indicates a record month for shipping. The port is expected to ship as much lumber in the first two weeks of May as for the entire month of April.

During April, 15,000,000 board feet of lumber, 15,275 tons of pulp, 1,000 squares of shingles, 300 tons of pulp products and 17,000 tons of iron ore were shipped from the port.

SUCKERS are born every minute. That's the way it seems anyway to Nanaimo diver Don Leo Jonathan when he tackles one of these king-size octopuses. He is a professional wrestler, and that helps. Fellow diver, Phil Nuytten, made the picture. (CP.)

SOLUTION MONDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions by adults to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Handbook Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to John T. Kacs, age 10, of Bridgeport, Conn., for his question:

What kind of monster is the Gila?

You will never meet a Gila monster in the woody outdoors of Connecticut. The winters of our eastern and northern states are much too chilly and the summers too wet to suit him. If you see him in an air-conditioned zoo, you might wonder how he came to be called the Gila monster.

There was a time when a monster was supposed to be a scary creature. Children and grownups alike feared his terrible tricks. As a rule he was not a real creature, and people were free to imagine him to be as horrible and ghastly as they chose. Then the fashion changed. Nowadays we refuse to be scared of monsters. Instead we enjoy monster masks, movies and TV shows.

The Gila monster, however, is not an imaginary creature. The fat, flat fellow is about 18 inches long, and he does not look at all like the huge and horrifying monsters of the movies. But sensible people who run across him in the wilds are quick to walk in another direction. For the Gila monster has one nasty, monster-type "trick": he bites. And his teeth inject a poisonous venom into the wound.

The unusual fellow is a gaudy lizard. He has a cousin who enjoys life in the sunshine of Mexico, and the pair of them are the only poisonous lizards in the world. The poisonous snakes have hollow fangs that can inject venom deep into the flesh. The poisonous lizards have grooved teeth, and the venom does not always run down the slots into the wounds. Nevertheless, their poison is very dangerous, and when they grab a victim in their strong jaws they hang on like stubborn bulldogs.

Color Patterns on His Body

Our Gila monster was named for the Gila River that wanders through the beautiful deserts of New Mexico. The river was named by the Spaniards, who pronounce it Heela River. The Gila monster is called the Heela monster by his southwestern neighbors. His scaly skin seems to be covered with beady embroidery, and he is very noticeable as he basks in the desert sunshine. The color patterns run in bands around his body and may be yellow, orange, white or black.

Mr. Monster has a blunt nose and a thick, stubby tail. The tail may be well padded with fat, and sometimes the rather lazy fellow lives for months on this supply of stored food. At other times he hunts for his groceries, usually in the early morning or in the cool evening after sunset. He enjoys the eggs of snakes and other reptiles and sometimes catches a mouse or some other small desert animal.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Robert Jenkins, age 10, of Redlands, Calif., for his question:

What kind of mineral is agate? The hardest of the common stones is quartz. It is a silica mineral, and all its molecules are made of silicon and oxygen. There are many forms of quartz and most of them are very beautiful minerals. The milky-white pebbles on a beach may be common quartz. Black flint is also quartz. Rock crystal is a glassy form of crystallized quartz.

Other quartz minerals are rated as semiprecious stones, and agate is one of these. Its rainbow bands are colored with traces of other minerals found in water-logged soil. For agate is a water-made stone.

IT'S A $4,000 SNAKE from the Southeast Asia flathead cat after going on display at the Cincinnati Zoo this week. The male cat, believed to be only the second in captivity in North America, is valued at $4,000. The other, a female native of Borneo, is on display at the San Diego Zoo. (AP Wirephoto.)

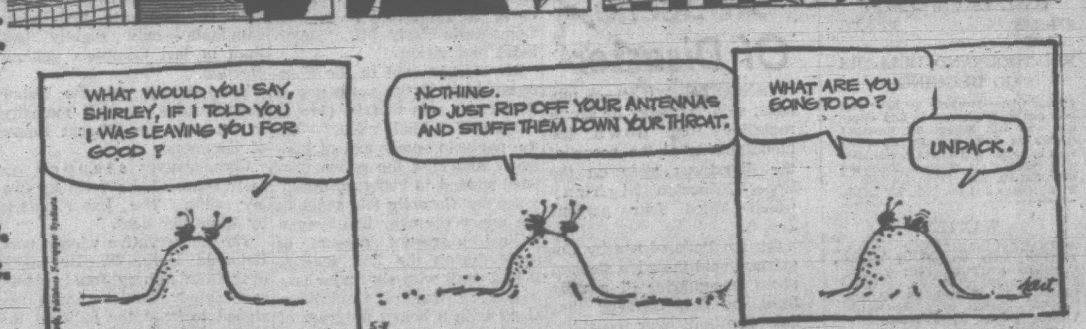

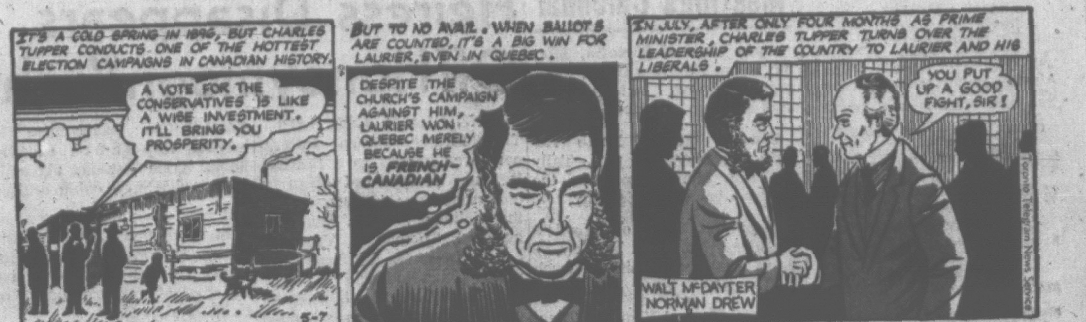

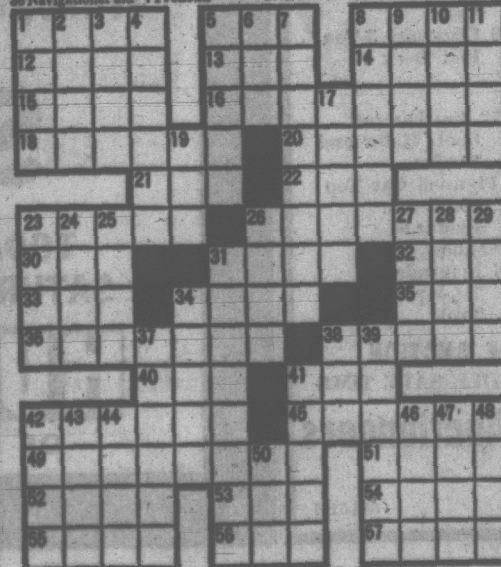

JOTTINGS IN PENCIL—Joe Levine will give the wonderful world of show business something really big to gab about by taking out a 100-page advertisement in Variety to announce a few little surprises. At a cost of $100,000 it will be the most expensive ad in the history of entertainment. Good for Variety's circulation, too; everyone will want to see this collector's item. . . . Vittorio de Sica received an impressive fee for doing "Moll Flanders" in England, but lost so much money at the gambling tables he'll have to go back to work immediately to fill those empty pockets. . . . When Rhonda Fleming switched her affections from Dick Elliott to Hal Bartlett, Dick wasted no time torching. He found himself another beauty—Elena Verdugo—and now she's his steady date.

Now that Dorothy Collins and Raymond Scott are finished as a marital team, she's resuming her career with a vengeance, teaming off with the lead in "110 in the Shade" in Dallas this summer. . . . Terry Southern, who collaborated on the screen version of The Loved One, obviously made a hit with producer Marty Ransohoff. He's been signed to write the scenario for Ransohoff's Day of the Arrow. . . . Singer Marilyn Michaels, 21, is ecstatic about her future. Joe E. Lewis caught her performance at Cafe Society in Chicago and told her he'd like her to team up with him as part of his nightclub "package" later this year. . . . There's talk of an Electrolux movie version of the ill-fated musical comedy Fade Out—Fade In—with Carol Burnett starring, of course. Carol had so much illness and unhappiness during the run of the show she probably wishes she'd never hear the title again, but if it meant a good return for the original backers of the flop, she might do it for them. Other contracts permitting, of course.

Frank Sinatra may expand the recent flatterer Life piece into a hardcover book. Bennett Cerf had the idea for Random House, and the Peerless Leader is considering it. . . . One of the nation's best-known comedians won't be seen again on a top rated variety TV show. He arrived at a rehearsal for his latest engagement on the program with a routine that was so unfunny he was cancelled after the first run-through.

Man's Vanity May Be Key To Fitness

Vanity could be the key to physical fitness programs, according to Dr. Maury Van Vliet, dean of the faculty of physical education, University of Alberta.

"It may be just vanity, but people want to look good in tight pants or bikinis," he said, following an address to the annual B.C. recreation and sports conference at the Empress.

"They are getting more interested in looking fit as well as feeling fit and are beginning to realize that only with fitness and good health can they really enjoy life."

Dr. Van Vliet, who recently returned to Canada from an extensive tour of physical education programs in Europe, said the North American Continent had one of the toughest fights to face because of the affluence of society.

'FAT AND HAPPY'

"In Denmark they have the same problem," he said. "The people there are fat and happy and we tend to be that way ourselves. With a history of affluence goes a certain amount of dissipation."

Dr. Van Vliet said his trip behind the Iron Curtain contained many surprises.

"The Russians are studying in depth all international sports," he said. "And I mean studying in depth. They have entire teams of experts checking out and studying anything and everything that is done on an international level. They know everything that is going on that is recorded in the English language."

The former star of Oregon University football team said Sweden was the most advanced country in Europe when it came to enjoying the outdoors.

LOVE FOR OUTDOORS

"They have a great love for the outdoors there," he said. "You can almost feel it when you walk down the street. It is quite ordinary on Friday afternoons to see the railway stations jammed with smartly dressed office workers all with a rucksack and rifle slung over their shoulder heading for the mountains."

Dr. Van Vliet also praised British physical fitness programs, especially at the elementary school level.

REALLY TRYING

"At the elementary level there is no finer program in the world," he said. "They are really trying over there. Even in the heart of the London slums in schools built hundreds of years ago they have small swimming pools. They go into the basement, rip out a couple of classroom walls and build a small pool right on the floor of the building. They're not big but it is true, and the surroundings are far from ideal, but it means that the tots at least have a chance to swim once or twice a week."

Dr. Van Vliet said one of the strongest impressions he brought back was the willingness of university students, especially those in Communist countries, to volunteer for work.

"I have seen students who have returned from their vacations two or three weeks early just to work on building or repairing the university track," he said. "Anyone who has had experience with university boys around here will understand me. They want $2 an hour before they volunteer for anything like that."

The conference opened Wednesday and closes Saturday afternoon.

Swamp Sale Rejected By Owner

A $15,000 offer from Saanich for Rithet's Swamp has been rejected by the owner.

City lawyer E. A. Popham, representing J. D. Burdge of Port St. John, described the offer as not acceptable and unrealistic.

The floral wonderland off Patricia Bay Highway at Royal Oak was offered for sale at $50,000.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said the next move on the 97-acre property is up to council.

Ad Agency Guilty On Fraud Charges

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal court jury found a New York advertising agency guilty Thursday night of fraudulently promoting worthless diet pills—the first time an agency has been convicted for plugging a client's product.

The jury found the agency—Kastor, Hilton, Chesley, Clifford and Atherton—guilty on all 41 counts of fraud in the promotion of Regimen tablets.

A spokesman for the ad agency said the verdict will be appealed.

B.C. Is Fastest Growing Province

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population reached 19,516,000 at April 1, an increase of 342,000 or 1.8 per cent in the previous 12 months, the bureau of statistics reported today.

British Columbia had the fastest growth rate, its population increasing by 3 per cent or 52,000 to 1,782,000.

Ontario's population climbed by 2.1 per cent or 140,000 to 6,702,000 while Quebec's rose by 1.7 per cent or 97,000 to 5,645,000, the bureau estimated.

Population figures for the other provinces (with totals at April 1, 1964, in brackets): New foundland, 496,000 (488,000); Prince Edward Island, 108,000 (107,000); Nova Scotia, 761,000 (759,000); New Brunswick, 623,000 (616,000); Manitoba, 961,000 (956,000); Saskatchewan, 949,000 (940,000), and Alberta, 1,448,000 (1,427,000).

MIXED REACTION

Interest Rate 'Freeze' Hit By Bankers

By The Canadian Press

Banking circles expressed both satisfaction and disappointment when Finance Minister Walter Gordon introduced revisions of the Bank Act in Parliament Thursday night.

Bankers were happy that the government is apparently moving toward changes recommended by the Porter royal commission on banking, but were surprised and disappointed that the finance minister proposed to retain the current six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

The government's "stand-pat" attitude on the interest issue was criticized by S. T. Paton, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

He said it is "difficult to understand in the light of the strong recommendations of the royal commission on banking and finance."

The commission's report, tabled a year ago, recommended that the ceiling be lifted even if its other suggestions were not accepted.

Mr. Paton said the proposal to allow chartered banks to enter the mortgage-lending field gradually would alleviate banks' problems somewhat and was thus to be welcomed.

'Step in Right Direction'

"The reduction of the cash reserve requirements from eight per cent to seven per cent is a step in the right direction, but I feel the variable reserve ratio for time deposits proposed by the royal commission is preferable."

The decision on the loan ceiling was described as a "government - preserved protective device for high-rate lenders" by Neil J. McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Continued limitation on commercial interest rates will deprive many Canadians "of high-risk loans at much cheaper rates than they now have to pay to finance companies of various kinds," he said.

Mr. McKinnon welcomed the permission granted to banks to enter the mortgage field, but added that the money supply would have to be large enough to allow the banks to step into that field to a major extent.

Bids Delayed by Debate

The Laurentide Bank and the Bank of British Columbia are also seeking charters but they have been delayed in parliamentary debate.

Kenneth Burn, general manager of Eastern and Chartered Trust Co., was disappointed that the six-per-cent loan interest ceiling had been retained.

He was not concerned with the proposal to bring trust and finance companies under direct federal control at a later date.

"We would have to have enlarged powers to offset the decreased earnings that would result from placing deposits with the central bank," he said.

G. Arnold Hart, chairman and president of the Bank of Montreal, also expressed disappointment at the retention of the current interest ceiling.

Singclair M. Stevens, president of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., and a leading figure in a move to get a charter for the proposed Bank of Western Canada, said the proposed changes to the Bank Act appear favorable at first glance.

He was especially pleased at the proposal that would make it easier to form new banks.

Mr. Gordon said authority will be sought to issue charters to new banks by letters patent, apparently in the same way that most commercial enterprises now are incorporated under the Companies Act. These charters, however, would be subject to upset by Parliament — only Parliament now can grant charters for new banks.

R. M. Willmott, president of Traders Finance Corp. Ltd., said he had expected the government to raise the six-per-cent ceiling but added banks were making adequate profits through their higher rates on personal loans.

Mr. Willmott said he was not worried at possible future extension of federal control to the "near-banks."

"We are not concerned and we never have been since we saw the recommendations. . . . There would be good and bad factors, but I feel the good would outweigh the bad."

4 Marines Die In DR Mistake

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four marines, bringing the U.S. death toll in the Dominican fighting to at least 13.

U.S. sources said three marines were killed Thursday after a patrol wandered into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo. Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the ceasefire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newspaper men who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly. They were Al Burt and photographer Doug Kennedy, both of the Miami (Fla.) Herald.

A U.S. military source said the newspaper men had passed through a rebel checkpoint and were approaching the U.S. lines when the insurgents opened fire on the marines and the marines fired back.

The source said it was probable that U.S. gunfire wounded the newspaper men.

Another marine patrol took a wrong turn Wednesday into rebel territory. After sharp firing, the rebels captured two of the marines but released them Thursday.

New Marine Depot Will Unite All Coast Transport Sections

By RON SUDLOW

Lorence E. Slaght, new marine agent for Victoria district marine agency, is looking west from the windows of his fifth-floor Federal Building office.

From there he can see the site of the Department of Transport's new marine depot. And he's looking forward to moving in.

"One of the main reasons for the new move is the two 404-foot weatherships now under construction in Vancouver," he said.

"We will also have modern machine shops and carpenter shops as well as good office accommodation."

"We have good offices in the Federal Building but the move will enable us to have our administrative offices near the shops and ships."

The new marine depot will also bring together the coast guard, aids to navigation and the hydrographic division.

SOUND MOVE

"This is a sound move because they do the soundings and we do the markings of channels, Mr. Slaght said."

The new marine depot will be located on the old seaward defence establishment near Colwood, north of Yew Point.

Mr. Slaght said he expects the government will begin foundation surveys this year and the depot will be completed within six years.

The new weatherships, which need larger berthing space than can be provided at present DOT facilities by Johnson Street bridge, will be assigned to man Station Papa.

The station, located 900 miles from Victoria, due west of the Island's northern tip, is the only offshore weather station manned by Canada.

The new weatherships, as yet unnamed, will replace St. Catharines, Stonetown and the standby vessel St. Stevens.

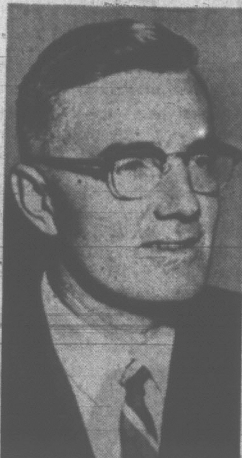

LAB SPACE

The size of the new ships (they are 121 feet longer than present vessels) will provide more lab space and permit more on-station oceanographic work, the new marine agent said.

"They will carry a crew of about 100 men including a doctor. Present ships carry 57 men," he added.

When on station the weatherships collect data from balloons and sent back weather maps every three hours. They also serve as navigational aids for aircraft and participate in search and rescue operations.

Mr. Slaght (it rhymes with flat) began his duties as new district marine agent here this week.

He succeeds Col. Keith Dixon who retired last January.

He began his career with the transport department in Ottawa as a junior engineer in the aids to navigation division in 1948.

In 1951 he was promoted to district engineer of Charlottetown Marine Agency, a post he held until 1957.

ON PLANNING

From 1957 to early this year he was contracts engineer in Ottawa and later switched to the planning end of the aids to navigation division, marine works branch.

As district marine agent for Victoria Marine Agency, he is in charge of the coastlines of Vancouver Island and B.C. to Queen Charlotte Sound, interior lakes and western Arctic coastal area.

He has a fleet of three weatherships, one icebreaker, two weatherships, one icebreaker, two aids to navigation vessels, two cutters, two crashboats and Tofino and Bamberton lifeboats.

Mr. Slaght enjoys fishing and photography as hobbies and looked forward to his west coast appointment because "It will give me my first real chance to be a boatowner."

He will soon take up residence at 3840 Wilkinson Road with his wife and two daughters.

PRO-U.S. SPEECH BY BENNETT

'Don't Pluck Eagle's Feathers'

By JOHN MIKA
Premier W. A. C. Bennett gave a surprise twist to the ceremonies marking start of construction of the centennial museum-archives complex Thursday.

PREMIER'S PLUNGER WINDOW DRESSING?

Who really touched off the dynamite Thursday—Premier Bennett or a workman hidden behind the speakers' platform?

Some keen observers at the centennial museum construction start ceremony noticed a hard-hatted workman crouched over a plunger behind the platform.

He kept his eye on the premier and when Mr. Bennett pushed the plunger—after a little initial difficulty—set up on a desk in front of him, the workman pushed his plunger too.

But, whoever triggered the blast, the dynamite went off with a loud bang which in turn triggered a startled shriek from a woman in the audience.

'GOOD SHOW! WHO WON?'

20 Years Ago World Cheered

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Twenty years ago today, a Victoria man serving with the RAF in Burma turned to his batman and said:

"The war in Europe is over."

The batman, a native African, replied: "Good show, Massa—who won?"

The Victoria man was Francis R. Jeffs, 1875 St. Ann. He was then a wing commander attached to the 82nd Division, West African Forces.

"The cease-fire started as a rumor and climaxed with a radio message from headquarters stating the Germans had surrendered and May 7 was officially VE Day."

On that historic May morning in F. R. Jeffs' 1945, General Gustav Jodl, German chief of staff, signed Germany's surrender at 2:45 a.m. German time—and all the guns, from France to Germany, went silent.

CITY CELEBRATED

Thousands of Victorians sang, shouted, blew whistles and waved flags—but thousands more were serving overseas with the navy, army and air force and auxiliary services.

"I was driving an armored truck on the road from Oldenburg to Wilhelmshaven in Germany when the BBC announced over," said Kerry Zeal, 1640 that the war in Europe was Edgeware.

"Later, over our radios, we heard the crowds in London whooping it up after all they'd suffered after all the bombing and blasting they'd endured."

Mr. Zeal was then a sergeant crew commander with the Fourth Armored Division.

When VE-Day came, we were simply keeping some German naval cadets bottled up in a wood.

SHOT TO MISS

"We didn't fire to kill—our orders were to stop them getting out of the woods, so we just fired around them. They sniped back at us—and they went on sniping long after the war was over, but I don't think any one of us suffered from it."

VE-Day has particularly vivid memories for Lieut.-Col. Kerry Zeal, 1068 Monterey. He was then commanding the First Battalion,

Canadian Scottish Regiment—and the battalion was about to take the German town of Aurich, northwest of Berlin when the war ended cease fire came through.

The battalion has seen bitter fighting and its original strength of 850 had been reduced to around 500.

"Aurich happened to be a German barracks town, so our quarters were ready-made for us," he said.

Leonard Ford, 711 Kingston Street, was aboard a motor torpedo boat with the 24th Flotilla of the Royal Navy when peace came, at Portsmouth.

"I'll never forget it. All the ships in port fired guns and sent up flares. The old seaport spouted fireworks all over the place and everyone went mad. There was dancing and singing till dawn."

IN ALDERSHOT

Arthur Duncan, a past president of the Britannia Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, was in Aldershot.

He had seen some bitter fighting with the South Saskatchewan Regiment over in Europe.

"It doesn't seem that long ago," he says.

"We were all pretty excited to think the war was over and we would soon be returning to Canada."

Philip R. Hughes, 904 West Saanich Road, was at Canadian Military Headquarters in London when the BBC announced the cessation of hostilities.

"We took the fire buckets round to the pubs and had them filled with beer."

"There were great crowds in Trafalgar Square. People went swimming in the fountains and climbed on the bronze lions."

SURPRISE TWIST

"However, today Canada and British Columbia are in closer harmony than they were a century ago."

David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, also spoke as the federal government representative. He said he did not want to stress the federal government's $2.5 million contribution to the three-building centennial project which will cost a total approaching $7 million.

FAMILY OCCASION

"This is really a national family occasion," he said.

"British Columbia should consider the federal grant as a birthday gift from the other nine provinces."

He said B.C., in turn, would be making its gift to the other provinces through a federal centennial grant and this exchange "should draw our national family ties just a little closer," he said.

A total of 18 flags flanked and topped the canopied dais where the special guests sat.

Premier Bennett set off a small dynamite explosion in a cleared and previously-prepared area of the parking lot to cap the ceremony.

ONE-DAY PASS AVAILABLE TO BUS RIDERS

B.C. Hydro today announced it will inaugurate a transit bus pass system May 16 but Vancouverites will have a better deal out of it.

BCH executive vice-president Einar Gunderson said a 25-cent pass for slack hours on weekdays will be available to downtown Vancouver users as well as a 50-cent pass for Sundays and holidays only.

In Victoria, only the Sunday-holiday pass will be available, starting May 16.

It will cost 50 cents for an adult, 25 cents for a child, and will entitle the holder to use the buses as many times as he wishes—but only for the day of issue.

"The Sunday and holiday pass will permit a rider to travel anywhere that B.C. Hydro operates urban transit buses, on the Sunday or statutory holiday on which it is purchased," said regional manager L. E. Wight.

"This means that one pass could be used on the same day in Victoria, Vancouver, Richmond, Burnaby, North Vancouver, New Westminster and on the special bus service when it operates around Stanley Park."

"A passenger could even use the pass in Victoria, travel by ferry or plane to Vancouver, then use the pass on the mainland—providing it was used on the day it was purchased."

He said the move was designed to encourage family groups to use the buses on outings.

A vigorous push for more passenger traffic will be made by the transit system through an advertising program as well as the passes, Mr. Wight indicated.

The pass program is a small step towards the goal advocated by Social Credit MLA J. Donald Smith at the last session. He repeatedly criticized the transit system for not selling passes to senior citizens and social allowance cases.

Q. How did the Scottish kilt originate? M. B.

A. According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, the kilt was originally not a separate, short, loose skirt but the lower part of the plaid garment in which the Highlander wrapped himself.

SMOKE SIGNAL MARKS START

EARTH AND SMOKE spurted skywards to symbolize the construction start of the $7 million centennial museum when Premier Bennett touched off a dynamite charge from the dais in the right background. Workmen moved in today to start excavation preparations on the civil service parking lot which will be site of the three-building project.

Arson is suspected in a fire that did about $5,000 damage this morning to a Saanich motel.

Police said all the indications point to a fire at Cadboro Bay Motel, 2630 Hibbens Close, being deliberately set.

The fire destroyed a shed containing a boat and trailer, lawn mowers and tools.

The shed is located at the rear of the motel property away from the main structure. Police said neighbors spotted the fire and raised the alarm shortly before 5 a.m.

The blaze was out of control by the time firemen arrived.

A provincial fire marshal was to investigate the matter today and Saanich detectives are working on the case.

A firebug was active in Saanich several months ago and caused considerable damage by burning down hay barns and empty sheds. An arsonist was also suspected of setting fire to a restaurant in Central Saanich.

The rash of deliberately set fires stopped suddenly after intensive police action. Police today did not say if they suspected any connection between the previous outbreak and this latest case of arson.

Topics of the Day

Gordon McKenna, 34, of 1040 Wychbury, is in good condition in hospital today after being injured while riding his motorcycle Thursday afternoon.

His bike was in collision with a car driven by Joan Empey, 2404 Estevan, at Esquimalt and Catherine.

RECORD MANIA SAYS JUDGE

John Condon, 1354 Harrison, has a "curious malady," Magistrate William Ostler said today.

The magistrate said it could be called "record mania."

The accused earlier pleaded guilty in city court to stealing $72 worth of records from a store. The magistrate said that Condon's record collecting had become an obsession.

He gave Condon a one-year suspended sentence.

BIDDING TRAGIC

National bidding would be tragic for shipyard workers here and does not seem fair, said Tom Wheatley, business agent for the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Pipefitters.

The federal government should have taken into account differences in the cost of living between east and west in awarding the Fraser contract, he said.

He anticipated layoffs in his union of perhaps 30 men in the immediate future. Two weeks ago, eight men were laid off at Victoria Machinery Depot.

Both the plumbers and the international Brotherhood of Electrical Workers agreed loss of the Fraser cost their men more than one year's guaranteed work.

The federal government has not announced a policy change from the regional bidding system, but last December Mr. Hellyer called this system inefficient.

UNIONS FEAR SHIPYARD DECLINE

Shipyard unions agreed today there is cause for "grave concern" about future employment in the yards.

"We are worried," said Andrew Manson, president of the Victoria and District Metal Trades Council (unions representing most shipyard workers).

National bidding on federal government contracts and the removal of shipbuilding subsidies last February "could be serious for the Victoria area."

The council will protest to Defence Minister Paul Hellyer the award of a $3 million reconstruction contract for the Esquimalt-based HMCS Fraser to a Montreal shipyard.

Spokesmen for the plumbers, electricians and shipwrights agreed with concern expressed in a letter Wednesday to Mr. Hellyer from the Machinists, Engine Fitters and Helpers.

Interest Rate
'Freeze' Hit
By Bankers

By The Canadian Press

Banking circles expressed both satisfaction and disappointment when Finance Minister Walter Gordon introduced revisions of the Bank Act in Parliament Thursday night.

Bankers were happy that the government is apparently moving toward changes recommended by the Porter royal commission on banking, but were surprised and disappointed that the finance minister proposed to retain the current six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

The government's "stand-pat" attitude on the interest issue was criticized by S. T. Paton, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

He said it is "difficult to understand in the light of the strong recommendations of the royal commission on banking and finance."

The commission's report, tabled a year ago, recommended that the ceiling be lifted even if its other suggestions were not accepted.

Mr. Paton said the proposal to allow chartered banks to enter the mortgage-lending field gradually would alleviate banks' problems somewhat and was thus to be welcomed.

Mr. Gordon said the proposal to allow chartered banks to enter the mortgage-lending field gradually would alleviate banks' problems somewhat and was thus to be welcomed.

He was especially pleased at the proposal that would make it easier to form new banks.

Mr. Gordon said authority will be sought to issue charters to new banks by letters patent, apparently in the same way that most commercial enterprises now are incorporated under the Companies Act. These charters, however, would be subject to upset by Parliament—only Parliament now can grant charters for new banks.

Kills 10
In U.S.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A string of tornadoes spewed death and destruction over this heavily-populated area of Minnesota Thursday night, killing at least 10 persons, injuring more than 300 and causing millions of dollars in property damage.

Heavy rain and two-inch hailstones preceded the twisters that struck during supper time.

Hundreds of homes were damaged and many were destroyed.

Governor Karl Roivaag called out national guard units to help local police and civil defence volunteers to maintain order.

Tornado sightings were reported over at least 25 small towns.

The heaviest damage was reported to communities around Lake Minnetonka; some 15 miles west of Minneapolis, and Spring Lake Park and Mounds View, 15 miles north of the city.

DESTROYS HOMES

Four persons died at Mound, a residential community on Lake Minnetonka's west shore. Dozens of homes were hard hit, and many were destroyed at Mound. Island Park and Navarre also on the lake's west side, received heavy property damage and reported many injuries.

Four persons died at Spring Lake Park, one at Mounds View and one at Norwood.

The injured in twisters that hit Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View were brought to Mercy Hospital at Coon Rapids in a continuous stream. After two hours, the hospital's administrator, Robert Van Hauser, pleaded with ambulance drivers and motorists to take their injured to other nearby hospitals.

Van Hauser estimated that upwards of 100 persons had been treated at Mercy Hospital. Nearly 30 of those treated were in serious condition.

It was Minnesota's second night of tornadoes. A series of twisters hit the northwestern portion of the state Wednesday, and another series struck the southeastern portion of the state. About 20 persons were injured, but property damage was heavy.

Blind Man Killed
EDMONTON (CP)—A blind pedestrian was killed and his wife was injured Thursday night when they were struck by a car that failed to stop. Joseph Courtepatte, 53-year-old Edmonton pensioner, was tossed 61 feet by the impact. Florence Courtepatte, 49, suffered a fractured pelvis.

CHU LAI (AP)—Three thousand more U.S. marines and 3,000 Seabees landed on a desolate coastal plain in South Viet Nam today and immediately began building a 4,000-foot air strip.

Not a shot was fired. Six South Vietnamese battalions scoured the area 48 hours earlier and killed eight Viet Cong and captured 13. Two of the government troops were killed and six wounded.

The Seabees—the U.S. Navy's construction and engineering specialists—estimated they would have the aluminum-base airstrip completed within 72 hours after all equipment had been unloaded from the ships anchored off the beach 52 miles south of the big Da Nang air base.

Rescuers Find
26; 7 Missing

MACKINAW CITY, Mich. (AP)—Two ships smashed together in the fog-shrouded Straits of Mackinac today and one, the 588-foot limestone carrier Cedarville, sank.

U.S. Coast Guard radio reports from the area said 26 survivors were picked up, one body was recovered. Seven men still were missing.

The Cedarville and the Norwegian freighter Topdalfjord collided about two miles east of the huge Mackinac Bridge, which links Michigan's two peninsulas between Lakes Huron and Michigan. The Cedarville sank within minutes.

Most of the crew of the Cedarville was from Rogers City, Mich., a community hard hit by another Great Lakes disaster in 1958. The Cedarville carried a crew of 35 men.

Early radio reports from the area told of hearing cries for help coming from the cold water.

E. C. Dagwell, a former marine radio operator, said the captain, Martin Joppich, tried to beach the ship, but was unsuccessful.

The radio operator said the Norwegian freighter radioed reports of "hearing fellows in the water calling for help."

The coast guard sent aircraft and ships rushing to the area, but were hampered by fog. The West German vessel Weissenburg was reported to have helped in rescue operations.

Lieut. William Mittag, a coast guard officer at Traverse City, Mich., said "the Norwegian vessel is standing by and appears in no danger of sinking."

Bennett Lashes
'Widening Gulf'By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday angrily denounced the federal government for "creating a gulf between British Columbia and Canada."

This was his response to reporters' questions whether he agreed with Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark's statements that the B.C. cabinet was thinking about "separation" because of 10 serious grievances with the national government.

"The treatment we are receiving from the government of Canada is creating a gulf between British Columbia and Canada," Mr. Bennett said.

"It could only be rectified by a complete 180-degree turn in federal policies."

"We're thinking about this gulf and I'm anxious as prime minister of it being bridged before it gets wider."

OTTAWA SILENT
There was no immediate reaction from Ottawa, although Prime Minister Pearson earlier in the day had brushed aside Mr. Loffmark's statements as merely manoeuvring for the May 31 federal-provincial conference on finance.

"The minister's own premier has always spoken in warm terms of confederation and all that it means to B.C.," Mr. Pearson told the House of Commons a few hours before reporters interviewed Mr. Bennett.

The premier's reaction to the Loffmark statement contrasted sharply with the general laughter it received from other cabinet ministers Thursday.

Asked if his reaction constituted a secession threat, Mr. Bennett replied: "I'm not making any threats—ever."

Asked if there was any connection between his bitter denunciation of Ottawa and his warm praise for the United States at a centennial museum ceremony a few minutes earlier, he said there was no connection whatever.

Previously, the maximum that could be borrowed under NHA was $14,900 for a three-bedroom house and $15,600 for a house with four or more bedrooms.

Under the previous system of calculating loan amounts, a four-bedroom house with a $21,000 lending value against which the maximum $15,600 loan was applied, required a down payment of $5,400.

The higher loan limit now will reduce the down payment for this same house to $3,000.

4 Marines Die
In DR Mistake

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four marines, bringing the U.S. death toll in the Dominican fighting to at least 13.

U.S. sources said three marines were killed Thursday after a patrol wandered into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo. Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the ceasefire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newspaper men who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly. They were Al Burt and photographer Doug Kennedy, both of the Miami (Fla.) Herald.

A U.S. military source said the newspaper men had passed through a rebel checkpoint and were approaching the U.S. lines when the insurgents opened fire on the marines and the marines fired back.

The source said it was probable that U.S. gunfire wounded the newspaper men.

Another marine patrol took a wrong turn Wednesday into rebel territory.

"I hated to do it," he said. The plane's captain, Art Bell, gave the order for the horse to be destroyed.

The drama occurred west of here. The four-engined plane had stopped last at Honolulu. Vanderford's owner valued him at $70,000.

The Toronto syndicate valued all the horses at $250,000. They termed Vanderford the best of the lot and a champion in New Zealand.

"He was a beauty," said McNutt.

Ropecan said there was no gun available so he grabbed a nearby fire axe.

"The six-year-old champion horse from New Zealand, named Vanderford, had broken out of his stall and kicked his way almost to the plane's cockpit."

AXE USED TO KILL HORSE
IN SAVING CREW OF PLANE

SAN FRANCISCO (CP-AP)—A flight engineer said Thursday he killed a Toronto-owned horse racing plane with a fire axe to save the crew of a cargo plane 8,000 feet above the Pacific Ocean Wednesday night.

"It was either him or the nine of us on board," said George Ropecan of Edmonton.

HOUSE LIFE DETERMINES MEDICARE

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister L. B. Pearson told the Commons Thursday that whether his government will proceed with plans for a medicare program as recommended by the Hall royal commission, in this Parliament, depends on how long the present Parliament lasts.

"Why don't you pull the pin?" shouted Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur).

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) raised the matter when he asked if it was the government's intention to act on the royal commission's recommendations for a health plan during the present Parliament?

"It depends, of course, on how long this Parliament lasts," retorted the prime minister with a smile.

ship for B.C. Ontario, he said, made up for the discrimination by benefiting most from Confederation because freight rates and geography favored its industry.

'PROPER SHARE'

The federal government's refusal to "contribute a proper share" towards Pacific Great Eastern Railway construction costs, the Second Narrows bridge for Vancouver and other Trans-Canada Highway links also were complaints.

Mr. Loffmark had said the battle over provincial rights to invest in bank stocks was a leading complaint and the premier also emphasized it.

He said if the House of Commons passes the federal government's proposed banking amendments which would prohibit provincial participation in banks, the Liberal party would be wiped out in B.C. at the next federal election.

WORDS DIFFERENT

Mr. Bennett's words and tone were entirely different from his last press conference two weeks ago when he had kind words for Prime Minister Pearson and repeatedly emphasized that he believed in "co-operative federalism."

In Vancouver, Thursday, reaction to Mr. Loffmark's comments was strongly hostile from Mayor William Rathie, R. G. Miller, president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, and E. P. O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

All said the Secords would be defeated if separation was attempted and added that Mr. Loffmark's sentiments were in conflict with all of Mr. Bennett's public utterances.

Armed Police For Election

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Armed police rode on the tops of buses today to protect Negroes going to vote in townships near Bulawayo as Rhodesia's general election got under way with independence the key issue.

Negro nationalist leaders have told their supporters to boycott today's election. It was feared that those Negroes who did want to vote would be intimidated.

Klansman Still Awaits Verdict

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. trial jury reported itself hopelessly deadlocked today but was sent back to try again to decide his fate in the night-rider slaying of a white civil rights demonstrator.

BBG Bid Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersgill said in the Commons today that "very difficult legal questions" and an unprecedented situation are involved in a BBG recommendation to cancel the radio licence of CJOR Vancouver when it expires Oct. 31. He told Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) he wants to give serious consideration to the law and to "natural justice" before deciding whether to advise the cabinet to accept the BBG recommendation.
